Soviet Appears Preparing For New Cold War Round

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Soviet rulers appear to be preparing for a full-scale renewal of the cold war on two fronts, in the Middle East to fight off a threat of growing American authority, and against President Tito of Yugoslavia.

Party boss Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin have drawn heavily once again from the old Stalinist arsenal of verbal weapons.

In their speeches at a Bulgarian reception Tuesday night, the two Soviet leaders used such old familiar terms as "warmonger" and "insane international adventures" to describe U. S. leaders.

One can speculate from this that Bulganin and Khrushchev, while they retain their nominal leadership of the party and government, keep their positions by toleration of the rest of the collective leadership. In their statements there is a hint of desperation, indicating a possibility that the Soviet population is being prepared for some sort of showdown among the Kremlin leaders.

Along with the violent attacks on the United States, Bulganin and Khrushchev, and the Soviet press itself, have raised the old demand, so familiar in Stalin's time, for "vigilance" against internal and external enemies.

This cry was raised in the same way during the struggle for power in 1953 after Stalin's death. It preceded the arrest and execution of police boss L. P. Beria.

But while the Soviet Union's leaders struggle with their own internal political problems and with what appears to be a growing ferment among the youthful sector of the population, they appear to be throwing up breastworks against further Soviet propaganda losses in their satellite Communist empire and in the Middle East.

Moscow has indicated it blames Tito for much of its trouble in Hungary, Poland and the other satellites. Bulganin's words on the subject remind the observer of the heyday of Stalinism.

Bulganin called Imre Nagy, the Hungarian Communist who tried to go Tito's way, a "vile traitor" and puppet of the United States.

The other front in the full-scale renewal of the cold war is the Middle East. Bulganin warned it was in for a "hell of atomic and hydrogen war" if it listened to the United States. This indicates the Soviet leaders fear American policy may make some headway toward lessening Middle East tension.

Violence on the international front invariably denotes internal weakness in the Soviet Union. The Bulganin and Khrushchev statements seem to add up to nervousness, which is forcing a return to Stalinism so that the home front, in the U.S.S.R. and the satellite nations, may be held in check.

Vandals Smash Phone Firm's Switchboards

35 Men Wreck Ohio Consolidated Gear In Jefferson County

STUEBENVILLE (AP)—About 35 men broke into the Dillonvale exchange of the struck Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co., night and smashed windows, doors, switchboards and fixtures.

The exchange was knocked out of operation, and persons who tried to place calls to Dillonvale today were informed by Stuebenville operators that the exchange is "out of service for the day."

The new violence came as negotiators for the company and the Communications Workers Union were reported nearing agreement in Columbus on a contract to end the seven-month old strike.

The union repeatedly has denied any knowledge of the cable cuttings and other vandalism which has marked the long strike. Nobody was hurt in the Dillonvale affair, Eugene Hobart, Howard Dean and Richard Fleener, "supervisory employees" who were on duty when the mob entered, fled the small building.

JEFFERSON County sheriff's deputies said they were unable to identify any of the vandals.

By the time officers arrived, the exchange was deserted.

In Columbus, another negotiation session was set for 2 p. m. Thursday in the Seneca Hotel.

E. L. Phillips, the federal mediator who has worked with the opposing groups for weeks in an effort to end the strike, was optimistic Tuesday night. He said:

"We don't want to raise any hopes, but we can't say one way or another whether a settlement may come tonight."

He commented then: "We're better off than we were." But he quickly added: "We're not there yet."

"There" would be settlement of the differences separating the company and union. These include retention of a union shop clause in the contract and 15 other issues.

Carolina Banker Handed Sentence

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—A man who admitted embezzling $608,500 from the bank he served as vice president and cashier faces a 3½-year prison term.

Clarence D. Cooper Jr. pleaded guilty in U. S. District Court here Tuesday. Judge George Bell Timmerman pronounced sentence, and fined him $500.

Cooper was charged with making false entries over a two-year period to cover the shortage. He was a veteran employee of the National Bank of South Carolina, Sumter, S. C.

Texas OKs Boost In Oil Output

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Railroad Commission granted authority Tuesday to add 210,901 barrels to allowable daily March oil production over February. The move had been urged by federal officials to help meet the European shortage.

The Interior Department said in a report that if both U.S. and European requirements are to be met, the domestic petroleum production during the next six weeks should be increased 300,000 barrels a day over January totals.

Phone Worker's Car Again Hit By Vandals

An automobile tire was slashed yesterday as vandalism continued to plague an Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company employee.

John Manson told city police this morning that the left front tire of his car was cut sometime last night while the vehicle was parked in front of his home at 203 Logan St.

Yesterday, Manson had reported that the front seat of his car had been slashed sometime Monday night. Empty coke bottles had also been placed beneath each wheel of the car, but police report that Manson discovered them before he attempted to move the auto.

Manson returned to work at the telephone company this week. He had previously been on strike against the company since the walkout of Communication Workers began last July 15.

TENSION between the strikers and company workers has increased in the past week. Monday, three company operators complained that eggs were thrown at them as they left the company offices. They said that at least one of the pickets was involved in the egg throwing.

Last Thursday, Donna Redman, another company operator, claimed that she was tripped on the sidewalk near company offices by an unidentified girl who appeared to be in the company of picketers. Mrs. Redman suffered a sprained knee in the incident.

Compromise Being Sought In Army-National Guard Fuss

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House Armed Services subcommittee turned to other phases of the military reserve program today while it sought to compromise an Army-National Guard dispute over recruit training.

Subcommittee Chairman Overton Brooks (D-La.) said the group probably will work next week on a compromise between the Army's demand that new Guard recruits get six months active duty and the Guard's insistence that those under 18½ be required take only 11 weeks.

Brooks indicated he has been impressed by the arguments in favor of six months training but is concerned also that "nothing be done to hurt the Guard," which says the requirement would wreck its recruiting.

The subcommittee heard one Guard dissent Tuesday.

Maj. Gen. Roy Green, commander of the 49th California Guard Division, said he had insti-

Semi Finals Set For Tonight In County Tourney

Pickaway To Battle Ashville; Buffaloes Will Meet Walnut

Plenty of action is in store for cage fans tonight when four teams take the hardwood for semi-final games of the Pickaway County basketball tournament at the fairgrounds coliseum.

Pickaway's up-and-coming Pirates run headlong into the powerful Broncos of Ashville at 7:30 p. m. and Walnut's Tigers clash with Scioto at 9 p. m.

With tournament fever already reaching a high pitch, tonight's semi-finals are expected to feature some good hard basketball.

Although Ashville owns a better record for the season, the Pirates can be counted on to put up a real struggle in efforts to rack up a tourney win number two. The Broncos will be seeking their third tournament victory and a berth in the finals.

WALNUT, by virtue of a forfeit win over Darby will probably muster every source of strength possible in an attempt to upset the highly-touted Buffaloes of Scioto. Walnut's other tourney conquest was a hard fought decision over Atlanta Monday night.

Scioto will be looking for its second win in the tournament, having defeated Salt Creek Monday in an encounter that provided some keen interest before the final buzzer sounded.

The Warriors, playing perhaps their best game of the season, almost proved to be the Cinderella team of the tournament as they led the strong Buffaloes by as much as 16 points at one time in the game.

The outcome was finally decided in the hectic last quarter as the Buffaloes fashioned a rally for a decisive but close win.

2 Whites Indicted In Negro Bombing

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Two white men were free under bond today on charges of dynamiting the home of a Negro integration leader.

James D. York and Henry Alexander surrendered to Sheriff M. S. Butler Tuesday after the grand jury had indicted them for the Jan. 10 dynamiting of the home of the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy.

IKE PLANS FULL REPORT ON MID-EAST TO NATION

A FIREMAN stares at the wreckage of a trailer-truck that careened, out of control, down steep Marshall avenue in Pittsburgh, failed to make a curve and crashed into a railroad bridge abutment. The driver, Dale Fruth of Fostoria, O., was pulled alive from the blazing cab by an off-duty policeman. Another motorcycle officer risked his life to clear a path through traffic for the runaway.

Lowerytown May Get Water Lines

City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins volunteered in city council's meeting last night to see what he can do to solve a problem that has baffled municipal lawmakers for many years—how to get water lines extended into the Lowery Lane (Lowerytown) district.

Extension of water lines into the Southend neighborhood has been a frequent subject for council discussion, but city officials claim that property owners always refuse to give the necessary easements. Robbins agreed to have a try at the problem after hearing church group spokesmen tell of efforts to set up a mission in the Lowerytown area.

The effort, launched city-wide before last Christmastime, is centered on plans for construction of a small building for mission church services. Also included in the move is a plan to bring about a general betterment for that section of the city, at the corporation's southern edge.

In connection with the longer-range goal, church leaders pointed out to council that one of the first improvements should be to get water lines extended. Residents in the section now carry water from a few nearby wells.

ROBBINS volunteered to explore the water line possibilities after members of council had reviewed the difficulties met in the past. The solicitor said he also intends to have an ordinance ready for council's next meeting to clear the way for the water line extensions.

Main spokesman for the church group last night was the Rev. Donald Mitchell, a leading figure in the Pickaway County Ministerial Association and strong supporter of the Lowerytown mission project. He outlined how the drive for the mission began, and how—coupled with it—is "a practical program of education and health."

Activities of the local Bible College, the Rev. Mr. Mitchell said, revealed the urgent need of a religious gathering place for residents of Lowerytown. Temporary arrangements are now being used for this purpose.

Work on the mission building is now in the preliminary stages. Goal of the campaign is $15,000.

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell said he is aware of some misunderstandings in reference to the drive for the mission, and he related how he has

Second Slaying Count Filed Against Man

ZANESVILLE (AP)—Stark County authorities say a recommendation from Prosecutor Joseph McNamee of Muskingum County led them to charge two Zanesville men with the murder Nov. 23 of two employees of a Uniontown grocery.

In jail are Dale Bundy, 39, and Russell McCoy, 22. McCoy is already charged with the Feb. 9 murder of his half-sister Louise See, 46, and her husband, Lloyd, 39.

Bundy and McCoy are accused of shooting to death Reynold P. Amodio, 30, manager of the County Line Market in Uniontown, and Paul E. Cain, 35, a clerk.

Norman J. Putman, Stark County prosecutor, declined to reveal any information in the case. He said he will withhold all details leading up to Bundy's arrest until "the day of the trial."

Canton police records show Bundy was arrested in Stark County for armed robbery in 1940. He was released, broke parole, went back to prison in 1949, and finally was let out in January, 1950. He has a long record of misdemeanors, police said.

A Muskingum County grand jury will go into special session Tuesday to consider separate charges against McCoy in the Sees' slaying.

Independents Rap New Garbage Plan

Horn Demands City-Wide Vote; 'Too Late Now,' Crites Warns

Circleville's new garbage collection plan underwent a sharp verbal attack in city council's meeting last night, but the municipal lawmakers warned that the city is already committed to proceed with the new setup.

Most of the criticism fired at the plan came from spokesmen for the independent haulers. Although city officials have yet to say so for publication, it has been known for some time that most or all of the independent haulers would be put out of business by the new system.

George Biding of Pike County, who has the contract for the city-wide system of collecting and disposing of garbage and rubbish, hopes to launch the new setup early in April. He is already signing up customers for the service, which will not be compulsory.

Residents who do not subscribe to the service, however, will have to observe strict sanitation rules and find some way to handle the refuse from their homes or business places. Only dumping grounds will be a new one to be established and operated under Biding's supervision.

THE NEW service offers residential customers two collections weekly throughout the year for a charge of $1.50 monthly. Business places, Biding explained, will be charged according to the amount of their refuse and the problems—if any—involved in collecting it.

Carl Riffe and Herman Turney questioned the councilmen closely last night in behalf of the independent haulers. Both fired sharp comments at the new system.

Stewart Martin, another spectator, also addressed council on the subject. He made it clear he was speaking only as an individual, and not as spokesman for the local organization.

Martin refrained from taking sides in the growing dispute over the garbage plan, but accented the fact that the public gave it only lukewarm interest when the ordinance was moving through three readings in council. Mar-

Sweden Says Reds Lie About Diplomat

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Sweden accused the Soviet government today of lying about Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg who died in a Moscow prison.

In one of the strongest notes in Swedish-Russian relations, Sweden said the Soviet government could not escape responsibility for the "high-handed" acts of its secret police.

The Swedish note was in reply to a Soviet memorandum of Feb. 6 placing the blame for Wallenberg's fate on Victor S. Abakumov, Soviet minister for state security, executed in 1954.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Faced with protests from postal employees over proposed cuts, the House moved into its second day of debate today on a money bill for the Postoffice department.

The committee recommended a reduction of $58 million in postoffice fund requests. A deluge of protests followed. The $3.1 billion approved by the committee is still $76 million more than the department had this year.

Rep. Gary (D-Va.), who headed a subcommittee that drafted the bill, said that by halting Saturday deliveries of advertising matter sent at cheap rates it could save $10 million annually.

MOSCOW (AP)—The newspaper Soviet Aviation said today Soviet science plans to harness the heat of the earth to generate electricity for homes and industry. The report gave no details.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will go on the air tonight to report to the American people on the Middle East situation and Israel's refusal to withdraw troops from the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba.

The White House announced Eisenhower will speak from 9 to 9:30 p. m. EST. The address will be carried "live" by all major radio networks and by CBS-TV and ABC-TV. NBC-TV will have a kinescope at 10:30 p. m.

Before the White House announcement, Sen. Hennings (D-Mo.) reported that "the general purport" of Eisenhower's discussions this morning with congressional leaders was that the GOP administration will support sanctions against Israel if they are voted by the United Nations.

However, Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate Republican leader, reported no decision about possible support of sanctions had been "finalized."

Knowland said it was suggested in the meeting that an attempt be made to get the United Nations to give renewed assurances to Israel that U. N. troops will be stationed in the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba when Israeli troops are withdrawn from those areas.

Knowland reportedly has threatened to resign as a member of the U. S. delegation to the U. N. if the administration supports sanctions in an effort to force Israel to pull out its troops.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.), asked whether any agreements were reached, told newsmen: "There were agreements and disagreements."

REP. MARTIN of Massachusetts, Republican House leader, and other participants said the whole field of sanctions—all kinds, was discussed.

Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, Democratic leader of the Senate, paused on the White House threshold to restate his opposition to sanctions against Israel unless they are applied also to Egypt and Russia. He said that the Democratic Policy Committee supported this position unanimously Tuesday.

As he had told Secretary of state Dulles, Johnson said, "We shouldn't have one policy for the strong nations and one for the weak nations. My view is that there is no place for politics in foreign policy."

Oh well, that's the way the test tube cracks. Maybe they'll have a little more success with their new idea. They're going to cross Baboons with Laughing Hyenas. The animals they breed will be called "Hyboons" and their plan is to rent them out to Television Shows as Studio Audiences. If you ask me somebody's already beat them to it.

Vandals Smash Phone Firm's Switchboards

35 Men Wreck Ohio Consolidated Gear In Jefferson County

STEBENVILLE (AP)—About 35 men broke into the Dillonvale exchange of the struck Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co., night and smashed windows, doors, switchboards and fixtures.

The exchange was knocked out of operation, and persons who tried to place calls to Dillonvale today were informed by Steubenville operators that the exchange is "out of service for the day."

The new violence came as negotiations for the company and the Communications Workers Union were reported nearing agreement in Columbus on a contract to end the seven-month old strike.

The union repeatedly has denied any knowledge of the cable cuttings and other vandalism which has marked the long strike. Nobody was hurt in the Dillonvale affair, Eugene Hobart, Howard Dean and Richard Fleener, "supervisory employees" who were on duty when the mob entered, fled the small building.

JEFFERSON County sheriff's deputies said they were unable to identify any of the vandals.

By the time officers arrived, the exchange was deserted.

In Columbus, another negotiation session was set for 2 p. m. Thursday in the Seneca Hotel.

E. L. Phillips, the federal mediator who has worked with the opposing groups for weeks in an effort to end the strike, was optimistic Tuesday night. He said:

"We don't want to raise any hopes, but we can't say one way or another whether a settlement may come tonight."

He commented then: "We're better off than we were." But he quickly added: "We're not there yet."

Texas OKs Boost In Oil Output

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Railroad Commission granted authority Tuesday to add 210,901 barrels to allowable daily March oil production over February. The move had been urged by federal officials to help meet the European shortage.

The Interior Department said in a report that if both U.S. and European requirements are to be met, the domestic petroleum production during the next six weeks should be increased 300,000 barrels a day over January totals.

Phone Worker's Car Again Hit By Vandals

An automobile tire was slashed yesterday as vandalism continued to plague an Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company employee.

John Manson told city police this morning that the left front tire of his car was cut sometime last night while the vehicle was parked in front of his home at 263 Logan St.

Yesterday, Manson had reported that the front seat of his car had been slashed sometime Monday night. Empty coke bottles had also been placed beneath each wheel of the car, but police report that Manson discovered them before he attempted to move the auto.

Manson returned to work at the telephone company this week. He had previously been on strike against the company since the walkout of Communication Workers began last July 15.

TENSION between the strikers and company workers has increased in the past week. Monday, three company operators complained that eggs were thrown at them as they left the company offices. They said that at least one of the pickets was involved in the egg throwing.

Last Thursday, Donna Redman, another company operator, claimed that she was tripped on the sidewalk near company offices by an unidentified girl who appeared to be in the company of picketers. Mrs. Redman suffered a sprained knee in the incident.

Compromise Being Sought In Army-National Guard Fuss

WASHINGTON (AP)—A House Armed Services subcommittee turned to other phases of the military reserve program today while it sought to compromise an Army-National Guard dispute over recruit training.

Subcommittee Chairman Overton Brooks (D-La.) said the group probably will work next week on a compromise between the Army's demand that new Guard recruits get six months active duty and the Guard's insistence that those under 18½ be required take only 11 weeks.

Brooks indicated he has been impressed by the arguments in favor of six months training but is concerned also that "nothing be done to hurt the Guard," which says the requirement would wreck its recruiting.

The subcommittee heard one Guard dissent Tuesday.

Semi Finals Set For Tonight In County Tourney

Pickaway To Battle Ashville; Buffaloes Will Meet Walnut

Plenty of action is in store for cage fans tonight when four teams take the hardwood for semi-final games of the Pickaway County basketball tournament at the fairgrounds coliseum.

Pickaway's up-and-coming Pirates run headlong into the powerful Broncos of Ashville at 7:30 p. m. and Walnut's Tigers clash with Scioto at 9 p. m.

With tournament fever already reaching a high pitch, tonight's semi-finals are expected to feature some good hard basketball.

Although Ashville owns a better record for the season, the Pirates can be counted on to put up a real struggle in efforts to rack up tourney win number two. The Broncos will be seeking their third tournament victory and a berth in the finals.

WALNUT, by virtue of a forfeit win over Darby will probably muster every source of strength possible in an attempt to upset the highly-touted Buffaloes of Scioto. Walnut's other tourney conquest was a hard fought decision over Atlanta Monday night.

Scioto will be looking for its second win in the tournament, having defeated Salt Creek Monday in an encounter that provided some keen interest before the final buzzer sounded.

The Warriors, playing perhaps their best game of the season, almost proved to be the Cinderella team of the tournament as they led the strong Buffaloes by as much as 16 points at one time in the game.

The outcome was finally decided in the hectic last quarter as the Buffaloes fashioned a rally for a decisive but close win.

City Health Department Pay Hike Proposals Pack Mystery Thrill

Proposals to raise one or more salaries in the city health department—a relatively small matter in these days of community-wide problems—appeared destined today to join the list of current city hall mysteries.

Three times, within the past several meetings of city council, the lawmakers have been urged in writing to boost salaries in the health branch. And each time the municipal legislators have either ignored the idea or "delayed" the measure after a series of quiet talks.

Latest chapter in the legislative who-dunit came last night when a brand-new ordinance called for a pay raise for City Health Nurse Mae Groome. After Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas started to read the measure, council decided it wasn't ready to hear it.

And then—later in the session—City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins went on record to emphasize that he had the ordinance prepared for action. The solicitor later commented that he does not intend to be "caught in the middle" on the matter. He said he does not want anyone to think he failed to prepare the ordinance.

IT ALL began sometime ago when Mayor Bob Hedges "recommended" a pay boost for Mrs. Groome. Council heard the recommendation and went on to other things.

Then, at a later meeting, the proposal came up again in the form of an ordinance that called for raises, not only for the health nurse, but for the other two members of the health office as well. C. O. Leist is city health officer, and Harriet Wallace is health department clerk.

Robbins at that time explained that, after Hedges had urged only the one pay raise, Chairman A. George Crites of the finance committee had asked that the measure be written to cover all three members of the department. The mayor thereupon said he would go along with the idea, but he personally felt only the health nurse should get a pay hike at this time.

He said the other two receive-

ed a pay increase "about a year ago."

(City Auditor Lillian Young said today the increase referred to was granted two years ago next month.)

Council wanted to know how the city health board felt about the pay-raise proposal, and action was delayed—at the February 5 meeting—until that point could be checked. Councilman Bill Wyatt and others declared council could not act on the proposal until the health board, in formal action of its own, recommended the increase—or increases. The mayor agreed to the delay.

THAT BROUGHT the do-do up to last night's meeting, when the new ordinance appeared and referred only to the city health nurse. Wyatt and other lawmakers appeared surprised, and the matter moved into a series of huddles along the edges of the council session.

Robbins said he was given to understand that the health board had formally recommended a raise for the health nurse but had not done so for the other two. This led the solicitor to question the mayor, who explained that the health board had not yet taken formal action on any of the proposed raises.

And that the only action was a "recommendation" on the part of the mayor, for the one pay raise.

Therefore, Robbins ruled, there was no legal action before council in reference to the raises—one, three, or none at all.

against sanctions were Rep. Halleck (R-Ind), assistant minority leader in the House, and Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.). Smith said he thinks the emphasis should be on negotiation and attempting to work things out on a reasonable basis.

Dulles declined at a news conference Tuesday to rule out possible use of sanctions. But he noted at one point that "there are all kinds of sanctions," including moral, military and economic.

THE ADMINISTRATION found itself squeezed between Arab insistence that the United Nations impose sanctions on Israel and congressional demands that the United States oppose any such action as unfair.

Members of both parties have said that if sanctions are imposed on Israel, they should be applied also to Russia, India and other countries they say have ignored U. N. resolutions.

Sen. Saltonstall (R-Mass) expressed optimism that a "substantial understanding" with Israel is imminent. He said he is "very hopeful" Israel will agree to withdraw her troops, but there were no signs of general agreement with his feeling.

Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban left New York to report today at an important meeting of Israel's Cabinet in Jerusalem. He promised "a full report on my government's thinking" when he returns, but he did not say when that would be.

Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion put forward earlier in the week proposals which a spokesman there described as an attempt to bridge the gap between the U. S. and Israel positions. These proposals have not been made public.

The U. N. has called on Israel to pull its troops out of the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba areas it captured last October. Israel has sought without success to get guarantees against Egyptian attacks from those areas before it withdraws.

Foreign Minister Charles Malik of Lebanon spent an hour at the State Department Tuesday and later reported:

"In the opinion of the whole Arab world, and indeed of the whole world, Israel must withdraw unconditionally."

Commissioners Act To Appropriate Funds For Sheriff

Pickaway County commissioners passed a resolution this week to appropriate $1,000 for Sheriff Charles Radcliff. It will partially compensate his department for excess expenditures found necessary in 1956 for the maintenance of cruisers.

The new appropriation will consist of funds transferred from the county unanticipated emergencies fund.

The 1956 unpaid bills of the sheriff's office were originally paid by the commissioners last month in a resolution requiring the necessary money to be taken from Radcliff's 1957 appropriations.

Total excess spending by the sheriff's office last year amounted to $2,285.51.

recently been engaged in clearing up some of the misconceptions. He told council how, at a two-hour meeting in the Southend last Sunday, he found a degree of misunderstanding. Following the meeting, however, there was strong interest in behalf of the mission effort, the minister told council.

PUBLIC Utilities Manager Ervin Leist said estimates on extending water lines into Lowertown range upward from $4,000. He emphasized that private property owners will have to grant easements to make the job possible.

Lowertown is privately owned. Councilman George Crites sharply criticized the water line proposal in its present form, insisting that better housing and other steps should be explored first.

"Otherwise," he warned council, "we're just throwing good money after bad. You can't make a race horse out of a mule."

Crites said he regrets the amount of newspaper and radio publicity centered on Circleville because of the mission-building project. The project has again put the public spotlight on shabby living conditions in the Lowertown district.

Crites argued that virtually all communities have the same problem to varying degrees.

HOWEVER, Joe Moats, another speaker, said he felt the money would be well spent if the city goes ahead with the water line extensions.

The efforts being made were also praised by Councilman Boyd Horn. "Good luck to you," he told the Rev. Mr. Mitchell.

Three Injured In Two Area Auto Accidents

Three area residents were injured in two auto accidents yesterday on county roads.

Mrs. Alpha Bauman, 66, of Ashville Route 2 suffered a bruised chest when a car she was driving went out of control and crashed head-on into another car driven by Robert Cooperider, 22, of 535 Franklin St. The accident occurred about 10 miles northwest of Circleville on the Circleville - Lockbourne Rd. at 5:15 p. m.

Cooperider received a bruised knee in the collision. An investigation revealed that Mrs. Bauman's car had a faulty steering gear, the sheriff's department said.

In another accident, Buehla Sowards, 22, of 213 E. Main St., received lacerations of the knee when a car in which she was a passenger went into a ditch as it was rounding a curve. The vehicle was driven by Donald Lee Sowards, 23, of E. Mill St. in Williamsport.

The accident occurred at 4:25 p. m. two miles north of Circleville on the Dawson-Yankee turn Rd. Both accidents were investigated by Deputy Sheriff Charles Felkey.

Chicago Group Protests Ban By TV Outlet

WASHINGTON (U.P.)—A Chicago group today protested to the Federal Communications Commission the action of a Chicago television station in cancelling the film "Martin Luther."

The petition was filed by the Action Committee for Freedom of Religious Expressions, composed of representatives of various Protestant organizations.

The group claimed to have protesting petitions bearing signatures of about 150,000 Chicagoans, and that additional signatures are coming in at the rate of about 50,000 weekly.

The petition to the FCC describes as "arbitrary" the action of WGN-TV in canceling a showing of the film last December. The petition said the station announced the cancellation as a result of an "emotional reaction."

The petitioners ask that the station's license be revoked. WGN-TV is owned by the Chicago Tribune.

The petition says "condemnation of the film can be identified in almost every case with the Roman Catholic Church."

Martin Luther was a leader in the Protestant reformation in the 16th Century. The film about his life has been shown throughout the world, but the Chicago telecast would have been a TV premiere. At the time WGN-TV announced cancellation of the showing of the film, Ward L. Quaal, the station's vice president and general manager, said that shortly after announcement of the scheduled showing "it became apparent that there was an emotional reaction to the plan."

Chamber Problems Told Circleville's Signify Progress

"Circleville has problems because it is a progressive community and problems are the price of progress."

This was the statement made last night to more than 50 members and guests of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce at the Chamber's annual meeting, held at the Pickaway Country Club.

The speaker was Marvin Purk, an executive assistant of the Dayton Chamber of Commerce. Giving the main address entitled "The Price of Progress", Purk rejected suggestion from the audience that the city had municipal problems because "nobody has done anything about them." He said: "Circleville is caught up in a dynamic, progressive American economy which is moving ever forward."

The local chamber members also heard the 1956 reports of the secretary Darrell Hatfield and treasurer, Elliott Barnhill and installed the 1957 officers and directors.

AFTER reviewing the previous year's activities, outgoing president Paul Johnson turned the meeting over to the 1957 president, David McDonald. The new president outlined the organizations goals for this year. He stressed: "Policies and patterns of development cannot be permitted to become a matter of course, because the course we take does matter."

"With some of the issues facing us, it is even more exciting than being a contestant on the $64,000 question, but it is not impossible to face them if we remember the Golden Rule and put the good of the community first."

The new president listed several projects for the Chamber's 1957 program as follows:

"We will try to identify Circleville as a progressive community to enterprising industries, using our new Route 23 bypass, which will soon be completed."

"We will encourage merchants to offer the best in quality, prices and selection, coupled with better parking and courteous police protection."

"We will encourage participation by county people through our agriculture committee."

"We will make known our support or disapproval on national issues to our proper representatives."

PURK, AS guest speaker, substituted for Harry Hall, secretary-manager of the Dayton Chamber. Hall was unable to attend because of a death in his family.

Purk highlighted his talk by asking that his listeners, seated around a number of tables, take five minutes and form a committee at each table to consider the question:

"What is the most important problem facing the community of Circleville today?"

The "committees" soon came up with an impressive list of problems which included, "better telephone service", "city management type of government", "down-town parking facilities", "providing for city services such as sewers and water", "attracting more business", "uniform sales hours", "improving sanitation", and "slum clearance."

Burk then said that the quickest way to get rid of these problems was to do nothing about them, but he added:

"Stagnation would result. Circleville would lose people to other communities which are more progressive. If things are left alone, a 1970 Circleville will be no better than a 1957 Circleville."

Purk said that the only other choice was to try to solve these problems. Emphasizing that they are problems which belong to each member of the community, he added:

"We should not be sorry that we have problems, because they are a sure sign that a community is moving ahead. Even though we may solve one, others will take their place and that is good."

HE POINTED out that if, for example, the city solved its downtown parking problem, it would create other problems such as traffic and street repair. However, Purk said that the community should not be afraid to add new problems to the list.

Declaring nobody solves a city's problems but the residents themselves, Purk pointed out that his experience in Dayton showed that "just plain talking about them" was the first step in coming to grips with the problems.

Purk concluded by saying there is no organization better qualified to take the initiative in solving Circleville's problems than its chamber of commerce.

State Employees May Get Pay Hike

COLUMBUS (U.P.)—Ohio's 40,000 state employees will receive $9 million in pay increases next July under Gov. C. William O'Neill's tentative budget.

The governor said his state operating budget, to be submitted next Tuesday, will contain a five per cent cost of living increase for all state employees and another five per cent statutory raise for all except those in the fifth step of their pay ranges.

He estimated that the cost of living increases would approximate $5 million for the state's two-year bookkeeping period.

He did not estimate the second increase that is required by law under the state's salary schedule but other sources figured it at about $4 million.

meet a public need for a modern service. They also repeated how only a few attended council meetings while the ordinance was under study.

Clifton said it is unfortunate that the interests of some will suffer in order to bring about the modernization, but he pointed out that the ultimate compensations will be far greater—and for the whole community.

Councilman George Crites supported Clifton's arguments, and also underlined the fact that the contract for the service has already been awarded.

"It's too late to turn back now," he warned.

Councilman Boyd Horn was the only councilman to line up openly with the opposition. He said he has received many phone calls and letters objecting to the plan. Horn said he agrees that the city's notorious open dump should be closed, but beyond that he withheld his support from the new system. The whole proposal, he declared, should be placed before local voters.

"LEAVE the older fellows (haulers) live," he said. "Let's leave it up to the taxpayers. After all, it's their money we're spending."

His comments brought a sharp retort from Clifton who said: "That was a good speech, but it's the same speech you say about every ordinance that comes here... You never come up with a new idea, but you're against every one that somebody else brings up."

"I'm looking out for the taxpayer," Horn insisted. "That's just what you are not doing," Clifton replied. "When you say that, you're saying something that isn't true," Horn told his fellow-lawmaker.

City Health Department Pay Hike Proposals Pack Mystery Thrill

Proposals to raise one or more salaries in the city health department—a relatively small matter in these days of community-wide problems—appeared destined today to join the list of current city hall mysteries.

Three times, within the past several meetings of city council, the lawmakers have been urged in writing to boost salaries in the health branch. And each time the municipal legislators have either ignored the idea or "delayed" the measure after a series of quiet talks.

Latest chapter in the legislative who-dunit came last night when a brand-new ordinance called for a pay raise for City Health Nurse Mae Groome. After Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas started to read the measure, council decided it wasn't ready to hear it.

And then—later in the session—City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins went on record to emphasize that he had the ordinance prepared for action. The solicitor later commented that he does not intend to be "caught in the middle" on the matter. He said he does not want anyone to think he failed to prepare the ordinance.

IT ALL began sometime ago when Mayor Bob Hedges "recommended" a pay boost for Mrs. Groome. Council heard the recommendation and went on to other things.

Then, at a later meeting, the proposal came up again in the form of an ordinance that called for raises, not only for the health nurse, but for the other two members of the health office as well. C. O. Leist is city health officer, and Harriet Wallace is health department clerk.

Robbins at that time explained that, after Hedges had urged only the one pay raise, Chairman George Crites of the finance committee had asked that the measure be written to cover all three members of the department. The mayor thereupon said he would go along with the idea, but he personally felt only the health nurse should get a pay hike at this time.

He said the other two receive

ed a pay increase "about a year ago."

(City Auditor Lillian Young said today the increase referred to was granted two years ago next month.)

Council wanted to know how the city health board felt about the pay-raise proposal, and action was delayed—at the February 5 meeting—until that point could be checked. Councilman Bill Wyatt and others declared council could not act on the proposal until the health board, in formal action of its own, recommended the increase—or increases. The mayor agreed to the delay.

THAT BROUGHT the do-do up to last night's meeting, when the new ordinance appeared and referred only to the city health nurse. Wyatt and other lawmakers appeared surprised, and the matter moved into a series of huddles along the edges of the council session.

Robbins said he was given to understand that the health board had formally recommended a raise for the health nurse but had not done so for the other two. This led the solicitor to question the mayor, who explained that the health board had not as yet taken formal action on any of the proposed raises.

And that the only action was a "recommendation" on the part of the mayor, for the one pay raise. Therefore, Robbins ruled, there was no legal action before council in reference to the raises—one, three, or none at all.

Commissioners Act To Appropriate Funds For Sheriff

Pickaway County commissioners passed a resolution this week to appropriate $1,000 for Sheriff Charles Radcliff. It will partially compensate his department for excess expenditures found necessary in 1956 for the maintenance of cruisers.

The new appropriation will consist of funds transferred from the county unappropriated emergency fund.

The 1956 unpaid bills of the sheriff's office were originally paid by the commissioners last month in a resolution requiring the necessary money to be taken from Radcliff's 1957 appropriations.

Total excess spending by the sheriff's office last year amounted to $3,285.51.

6 West European Nations OK Pact

PARIS (AP)—Top leaders of six West European nations today agreed on treaties providing for eventual abandonment of trade barriers among them.

French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau said the treaties would be signed in Rome "as soon as possible" but that no date had been fixed. Once signed, they would have to win final approval from the parliaments of the six nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Under the common market plan the six nations of some 160 million people would do away with the customs and tariff barriers.

Medals Make Coins

TOKYO (AP)—Japan's Finance Ministry decided today to make money out of 1,140,000 unused silver medals left over from World War II. They will be minted into 15 tons of 100-yen coins, worth 27.8 cents each.

recently been engaged in clearing up some of the misconceptions. He told council how, at a two-hour meeting in the Southend last Sunday, he found a degree of misunderstanding. Following the meeting, however, there was strong interest in behalf of the mission effort, the minister told council.

PUBLIC Utilities Manager Ervin Leist said estimates on extending water lines into Lowertown range upward from $4,000. He emphasized that private property owners will have to grant easements to make the job possible.

Lowertown is privately owned. Councilman George Crites sharply criticized the water line proposal in its present form, insisting that better housing and other steps should be explored first.

"Otherwise," he warned council, "we're just throwing good money after bad. You can't make a race horse out of a mule."

Crites said he regrets the amount of newspaper and radio publicity centered on Circleville because of the mission-building project. The project has again put the public spotlight on shabby living conditions in the Lowertown district.

Crites argued that virtually all communities have the same problem to varying degrees.

HOWEVER, Joe Moats, another speaker, said he felt the money would be well spent if the city goes ahead with the water line extensions.

The efforts being made were also praised by Councilman Boyd Horn. "Good luck to you," he told the Rev. Mr. Mitchell.

Three Injured In Two Area Auto Accidents

Three area residents were injured in two auto accidents yesterday on county roads.

Mrs. Alpha Bauzman, 66, of Ashville Route 2 suffered a bruised chest when a car she was driving went out of control and crashed head-on into another car driven by Robert Cooperider, 25, of 535 Franklin St. The accident occurred about 10 miles northwest of Circleville on the Circleville - Lockbourne Rd. at 5:15 p. m.

Cooperider received a bruised knee in the collision. An investigation revealed that Mrs. Bauzman's car had a faulty steering gear, the sheriff's department said.

In another accident, Bueha Sowards, 22, of 213 E. Main St., received lacerations of the knee when a car in which she was a passenger went into a ditch as it was rounding a curve. The vehicle was driven by Donald Lee Sowards, 23, of E. Mill St. in Williamsport.

The accident occurred at 4:25 p. m. two miles north of Circleville on the Dawson-Yankee town Rd.

Both accidents were investigated by Deputy Sheriff Charles Felkey.

Chicago Group Protests Ban By TV Outlet

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Chicago group today protested to the Federal Communications Commission the action of a Chicago television station in cancelling the film "Martin Luther."

The petition was filed by the Action Committee for Freedom of Religious Expressions, composed of representatives of various Protestant organizations.

The group claimed to have protesting petitions bearing signatures of about 150,000 Chicagoans, and that additional signatures are coming in at the rate of about 50,000 weekly.

The petition to the FCC describes as "arbitrary" the action of WGN-TV in cancelling a showing of the film last December. The petition said the station announced the cancellation as a result of an "emotional reaction."

The petitioners ask that the station's license be revoked. WGN-TV is owned by the Chicago Tribune.

The petition says "condemnation of the film can be identified in almost every case with the Roman Catholic Church."

Martin Luther was a leader in the Protestant reformation in the 16th Century. The film about his life has been shown throughout the world, but the Chicago telecast would have been a TV premiere. At the time WGN-TV announced cancellation of the showing of the film, Ward L. Quaal, the station's vice president and general manager, said that shortly after announcement of the scheduled showing "it became apparent that there was an emotional reaction to the plan."

Chamber Told Circleville's Problems Signify Progress

"Circleville has problems because it is a progressive community and problems are the price of progress."

This was the statement made last night to more than 50 members and guests of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce at the Chamber's annual meeting, held at the Pickaway Country Club.

The speaker was Marvin Purk, an executive assistant of the Dayton Chamber of Commerce. Giving the main address entitled "The Price of Progress," Purk rejected suggestion from the audience that the city had municipal problems because "nobody has done anything about them." He said: "Circleville is caught up in a dynamic, progressive American economy which is moving ever forward."

The local chamber members also heard the 1956 reports of the secretary Darrell Hatfield and treasurer, Elliott Barnhill and installed the 1957 officers and directors.

AFTER reviewing the previous year's activities, outgoing president Paul Johnson turned the meeting over to the 1957 president, David McDonald. The new president outlined the organizations goals for this year. He stressed:

"Policies and patterns of development cannot be permitted to become a matter of course, because the course we take does matter. "With some of the issues facing us, it is even more exciting than being a contestant on the $64,000 question, but it is not impossible to face them if we remember the Golden Rule and put the good of the community first."

The new president listed several projects for the Chamber's 1957 program as follows:

"We will try to identify Circleville as a progressive community to enterprising industries, using our new Route 23 bypass, which will soon be completed."

"We will encourage merchants to offer the best in quality, prices and selection, coupled with better parking and courteous police protection."

"We will encourage participation by county people through our agriculture committee."

"We will make known our support or disapproval on national issues to our proper representatives."

PURK, AS guest speaker, substituted for Harry Hall, secretary-manager of the Dayton Chamber. Hall was unable to attend because of a death in his family.

Purk highlighted his talk by asking that his listeners, seated around a number of tables, take five minutes and form a committee at each table to consider the question:

"What is the most important problem facing the community of Circleville today?"

The "committees" soon came up with an impressive list of problems which included, "better telephone service", "city management type of government", "down-town parking facilities", "providing for city services such as sewers and water", "attracting more business", "uniform sales hours", "improving sanitation", and "slum clearance."

Burk then said that the quick-est way to get rid of these problems was to do nothing about them, but he added:

"Stagnation would result. Circleville would lose people to other communities which are more progressive. If things are left alone, a 1970 Circleville will be no better than a 1957 Circleville."

Purk said that the only other choice was to try to solve these problems. Emphasizing that they are problems which belong to each member of the community, he added:

"We should not be sorry that we have problems, because they are a sure sign that a community is moving ahead. Even though we may solve one, others will take their place and that is good."

HE POINTED out that if, for example, the city solved its downtown parking problem, it would create other problems such as traffic and street repair. However, Purk said that the community should not be afraid to add new problems to the list.

Declaring nobody solves a city's problems, but the residents themselves, Purk pointed out that his experience in Dayton showed that "just plain talking about them" was the first step in coming to grips with the problems.

Purk concluded by saying there is no organization better qualified to take the initiative in solving Circleville's problems than its chamber of commerce.

State Employees May Get Pay Hike

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's 40,000 state employees will receive $9 million in pay increases next July under Gov. C. William O'Neill's tentative budget.

The governor said his state operating budget, to be submitted next Tuesday, will contain a five per cent cost of living increase for all state employees and another five per cent statutory raise for all except those in the fifth step of their pay ranges.

He estimated that the cost of living increases would approximate $5 million for the state's two-year bookkeeping period. He did not estimate the second increase that is required by law under the state's salary schedule but other sources figured it at about $4 million.

Accused Driver Fined, Jailed In Muny Court

A motorist accused of driving when under the influence of intoxicants, Maynard Lippe, 22, Lockbourne Air Force Base, headed today's roundup of cases heard in Circleville Municipal Court.

Lippe was fined $150 and costs, sentenced to five days in jail and had his driver's license suspended for one year. It was his second conviction here for driving under the influence. He was arrested by city police.

Motorists arrested by the state patrol were as follows:

Paul D. Myers, 30, Bentleyville, Pa.; $15 and costs for speeding at 65 in a 50 mile zone. Hedgel Borders, 30, Columbus; $20 and costs for speeding at 80. Philip Bingmer, 23, Circleville; $10 and costs for failure to file an application for car registration. Lawrence Courtwright, 21, Columbus, was fined $25 and costs for no operator's license. He was arrested by city police.

Supplemental Soil Bank Bill Gets OK

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Agriculture Committee has approved a bill providing far-reaching supplemental soil bank benefits to corn growers and most other farmers for the 1957 crop year.

The cost is impossible to pinpoint, but its principal effects would be to:

1. Provide $250 million of supplemental soil bank payments to farmers to cut down on corn and feed grains, and

2. Establish a separate $300 million soil bank program exclusively for grain growers with payments of $15 an acre for reducing feed grain acreage.

The bill is a substitute for the administration's limited program to stabilize corn prices and production.

meet a public need for a modern service. They also repeated how only a few attended council meetings while the ordinance was under study.

Clifton said it is unfortunate that the interests of some will suffer in order to bring about the modernization, but he pointed out that the ultimate compensations will be far greater—and for the whole community.

Councilman George Crites supported Clifton's arguments, and also underlined the fact that the contract for the service has already been awarded.

"It's too late to turn back now," he warned.

Councilman Boyd Horn was the only councilman to line up openly with the opposition. He said he has received many phone calls and letters objecting to the plan. Horn said he agrees that the city's notorious open dump should be closed, but beyond that he withheld his support from the new system. The whole proposal, he declared, should be placed before local voters.

"LEAVE the older fellows (chauffers) live," he said. "Let's leave it up to the taxpayers. After all, it's their money we're spending."

His comments brought a sharp retort from Clifton who said:

"That was a good speech, but it's the same speech you say about every ordinance that comes here. . . . You never come up with a new idea, but you're against every one that somebody else brings up."

"I'm looking out for the taxpayer," Horn insisted.

"That's just what you are not doing," Clifton replied.

"When you say that, you're saying something that isn't true," Horn told his fellow-lawmaker.

Housewives Make Business 'Out Of 'Dolls With History'

When Mrs. Joan Kaltschmidt and her aunt Mrs. Winifred Zeilinger decided to combine their talents in ceramics, dressmaking and research, they came up with not only an original idea, but a growing business which rapidly is crowding their cellar-studio at Flushing, L. I.

The business actually was born many years ago as a high school girl's dream of some day making a complete set of dolls dressed in authentic costumes to depict what women wore through the ages.

Mrs. Kaltschmidt was the girl, but her dream didn't start to take shape until April, 1955. Today she and her aunt are working overtime to fill orders for their 12-inch "Laudable Ladies" dolls which are pouring into their studio.

The dolls are dressed-up, authentic copies of the original costumes worn by ladies from 1775 to the present.

"THERE IS no guesswork involved," says Mrs. Kaltschmidt, the historian of the business. "A doll is never finished until we are certain she is a perfect duplicate from the petticoat out, and even to her shoes, coiffure and accessories."

To keep their dolls accurate in every detail, Mrs. Kaltschmidt spends many hours at libraries boning up on costumes worn in bygone days. Often, she must create an exact copy from nothing more than a hazy description of a dress found in outdated books and magazines.

Along with her endless research, Mrs. Kaltschmidt handles the ceramics kiln, turning out dozens of dolls heads with the exact hair styles to match the era the doll is to represent.

Working with six basic molds, Mrs. Kaltschmidt is particularly careful to keep each head distinctively different from the others.

Mrs. Zeilinger's job of dress-making calls for infinite patience and skill. She must scale down to 12 inches a costume of a full grown woman... and do it with nothing more to work with than a faded photograph or a vague, archaically-worded description.

Until last year their efforts at operating a small business were confined to neighborhood recognition. However, since they won a first prize for costuming at an exposition in Springfield, Mass., the dolls have been selling to collectors and other customers as far west as Galveston, Tex., and as far south as Florida.

which can be assembled in a few hours.

Each kit includes hands, feet, head, patterns for body, underwear, petticoats and gown. When a customer orders the period she desires, the corresponding kit is sent along, including a capsule history of what was worn during the particular period in history to help with the costuming.

guess," the actor remarked. "That crowd used to stay in New York because that's where the work was. But with television out here now, they can find enough to keep them busy."

Homolka can attest to the fact that TV has helped the actor, since he's here to do a couple of Matinee Theater shows on NBC—an Ibsen and a Tennessee Williams.

Hollywood, he sighed, looks just a little shabby after a 10-year absence. But lest the Chamber of Commerce get too indignant, he added: "When I have breakfast by the swimming pool at my hotel these mornings, I realize that it can also be a pretty nice place, too."

Sees Change In Hollywood's Atmosphere

Gone, he added, are the parties of yesteryear—the fun affairs where stars could kick off their shoes and enjoy themselves.

"Nowadays there seem to be big parties or none at all," Homolka said. "And none of the guests seems to enjoy themselves. They are too busy looking around to see who is there."

He remarked that there appeared to be a new kind of Hollywoodian these days, the party type that used to hang around Greenwich Village.

"Television has done that, I

The distinguished character actor is back in the movie town for his first stay in almost 10 years. "I would hardly recognize the place," he commented.

"When I first arrived here in 1937, the red carpet treatment was the big thing. I was borrowed from Gaumont-British to make a picture for Paramount, 'Ebb Tide.' When I got to New York, I was put up in a monstrous place in the Waldorf Towers. Then one of the studio people decided it wasn't big enough, and they got me a bigger place.

"They had a press reception for me with 500 people. And I got the same treatment when I went to Hollywood. It was fabulous." That sort of lavishness is gone today, he observed, along with some other things.

"Hollywood lacks the stars that it had in those days," he sighed. "I mean the fabulous stars of the Garbo era. Today there is no mystery, no excitement about the stars. There is too much emphasis on domesticity."

"Take the example of the Lucille Ball baby. When she had it, the whole world was in on it. Where is the glamor?"

Demand Tapering Off In Production Of Packaging Material

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—The health of the paper and pulp industry often gives a quick clue to how industry in general is faring. And paper leaders report today that demand has levelled off to the point they now have overcapacity to produce.

Paper's role as an indicator of general industrial activity rises from the fact that so much of its various products is used to package the output of other industries on the long and sometimes complicated journey from the factory to the consumer. Any drop in general industrial output is quickly reflected in the activity of the paper industry.

The nation's paper industry produced a record 31 million tons last year, an increase of 5 per cent over 1955. This by coincidence was the same percentage by which the gross national product—the dollar total of the nation's goods and services—increased.

In turning out this record volume most paper companies did well in the profit department. The first 21 companies in the paper, pulp and their products industry—making everything from newsprint to picnic plates—to report their net profit after taxes in 1956 showed combined earnings of $159,272,280. This is a 22.7 per cent increase over the $129,778,449 the same companies made in 1955.

Although reporting overcapacity for the moment, many leaders in the industry consider this but a temporary thing.

They lay the levelling off in demand to disturbed world conditions, which have affected European production notably, and in some extent to the tight money situation in this country.

They contend that a search for new markets for paper will shortly take up the slack here.

And despite temporary overcapacity the industry plans further expansion to meet increased demand which the companies foresee in the years ahead. Industry leaders say that paper companies plan to spend a record 900 million dollars this year, which would be 100 million more than was spent on expansion last year.

David L. Luke Jr., president of the American Paper & Pulp Assn. and also president of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., warns that the industry will need stability if it is to attract investment cash it will need to meet what he calls a seemingly assured growth of markets over the long term.

Not all leaders of the pulp and paper industry are agreed on the outlook for 1957.

Karl Clauson, president of the Assn. of American Wood Pulp Importers, doubts if there'll be much increase in consumption of market pulp this year. He thinks it may take two or three years before the long term growth factors will make industrial demand catch up with the available supply of pulp.

Samuel Sutphin, president of Pulp Consumers, on the other hand, looks for users of paper grades of market pulp to consume 230,000 more tons this year than last.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The same Army officials who tried unsuccessfully to motorize military funerals have now decided to try to dispose of the Army's dogs.

The Army mule and the Army carrier pigeon already have been abandoned in the modernization.

The need for economy is being given as the reason for demobilizing the Army's 950 dogs, now doing scout and sentry duty.

City Asking Advance On Tax Share

Chairman George Crites of city council's finance committee explained last night why it was necessary for the city to ask for an other advance on tax distribution funds in order to guard against any lapse in payroll or other necessary payments.

The lawmakers later voted to ask for a $10,000 advance on money the city will have coming from the county. They acted after Crites disclosed the city's general fund had dropped more than $4,000 "into the red."

Crites said the city has been expecting a tax fund distribution; but that County Treasurer Bob Colville suggested the advance until the distribution is ready.

Discussion at the time was centered on a report by City Auditor Lillian Young, made to cover the first 19 days of February. Miss Young's report, showing funds, receipts, expenditures and balances, was accepted as follows:

General Fund $2,248.58, $9,752.02, $4,317.29 (deficit); Water Works Operation Fund $4,545.31, 3,955.39, $55,543.73; Sewage Disposal Fund $1,945.11, 1,645.39, 10,264.44; Street, Construction and Repair Fund $4,498.00, 1,694.18, 2,292.91; Water Works Trust Fund $80.00, $95.00, $3,580.00; Police Pension Fund, none, $251.05, $8,650.98; Firemen Pension Fund, none, $125.00, $9,456.68; Fire Truck Fund, none, $514.78, $7,384.16.

In geological parlance this is the Quarternary Period of the Cenozoic Era.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Some women make me sick! Take your correspondent of Jan. 16, for example—the lonely widow, with children grown and gone, who lives in the village outskirts and "wants some kind of friendship, if possible." Does she expect people to run after her, while she does nothing?

I know lots of women in my own Canadian countryside, who live a half-mile from neighbors, yet they have friends. They join the Ladies' Aid, the missionary societies and the card parties at church; and they work for the bake sales; and are so much loved that they haven't time to feel sorry for themselves. (They also keep candies and cookies for youngsters.)

I too am alone; and, what's worse, an old maid, age 75, lame in the leg, weak in the eyesight. But I am not exactly lonely. I live in a top floor back room, which I have made very pleasant, with flowers, pictures, a divan bed, etc.

When I was left alone two years ago I sold our home and came to this city, where I joined the Church Guild and sewing circle and last week went to the annual luncheon. I joined the swimming class at the YWCA but found it too strenuous and changed to painting. (My English sister-in-law is organizing a painting class in Wales, and members come from miles around.)

I have hired a typewriter (can't afford to buy one) and am learning to type in case my eyes fail. I don't ask strangers to pity me and become pen-pals, but I do spend about $2 a month on postage, to all my old friends. I always say: "This letter doesn't need an answer; but I just thought we could have a little get-together whilst you drink a cup of tea"—and often I enclose a tea bag.

My neighbor downstairs, a gentleman of 80, just came up to inquire if I am warm enough (the weather is below zero tonight).

My beloved father taught me: "If you want to have friends, you must show yourself friendly." When I think of how many of God's children there are in the world—they are all my brothers and sisters, of course—I am so happy that the days aren't long enough for me.

For goodness sake tell this widow to cheer up. Or if I could have her address I would write her myself. "More power to yer elbow!" No, I wouldn't bully her; but I might cheer her up a bit.

P. B.
DEAR P. B.: Your attitude is wonderful, and a challenge to all of us to "wake up and live" more fully. You have a brilliant spirit, overflowing with youthful interest in everything.

There is no doubt that a friendly exchange with you would do the isolated widow a world of good. But sorry to say, I can't put you in touch with each other.

For reasons of discretion, it always has been the policy of this column to protect the anonymity of all correspondents, and to refrain from bringing "unknowns" together. While there are times—as in this instance—when an exception might seem well warranted, nevertheless, since the rule is established, we feel duty-bound to observe it impartially.

However, I can't resist publishing your comment, because of its vigor and dash—which shows that personal vitality (or "git-up-and-git," as our ancestors called it) is fueled more by will and intelligence than by one's circumstances or degree of physical fitness.

Here's hoping the widow snaps into action, spurred by your lecture, and finds fellowship work to do, with neighborhood groups such as you have suggested. And I thank you very much for your heartfelt love for all God's children.

Army Engineers Plan Consolidation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Consolidation of inventory control and accounting of Army engineer supplies at St. Louis instead of at seven different depots, was announced here this week.

Sen. Symington (D-Mo.) said Maj. Gen. E. C. Itschner, chief of engineers, told him the change to increase efficiency would be put into effect gradually over a period from April 1 to Oct. 1.

He said the Army reported that approximately 300 civilian employees at the various depots will be given an opportunity to transfer to St. Louis.

Affected depots, Symington said, include the Marion Engineer Depot, Marion, Ohio, April 1.

Ohio Assembly Leaders Outline Bills On Which Some Action To Be Taken

COLUMBUS (AP)—Leaders of the Republican-dominated 102nd Ohio General Assembly aren't sure what the decisions will be, but they say the Legislature will take "some action" in the next two or three months on a whole host of problems.

Don't look for the same type of block-buster legislative programs which have been the vogue in recent years, warned Senate Majority Leader C. Stanley Mechem and House Speaker Roger Cloud.

They issued a joint statement containing a "some action" list under these headings and in this order:

Education—A law to permit use of money from the 1955 state bond issue of $150 million for the building of classrooms in needy school districts; a law to spell out state support for a school bus purchase program; several revisions in the school foundation law of 1955 to plug loopholes; temporary measures to meet "pressing problems" confronting state-supported universities; a bill to let state universities buy sties and sell bonds for dormitories.

Highways and Commerce — an appropriation of the remainder of the $500 million highway bond issue of 1953; a decision on whether the state or the utilities should pay for moving utility facilities lying in the right-of-way of the interstate highway projects; a bill to cut the license fees for public transit buses to reduce some of all transit firms' "financial distress"; a highway safety program, possibly to include a deterrent system for accident-prone drivers and a compulsory inspection system for autos; a bill to create a single state reciprocity board on license fees and the like.

Solon Warning Oil Industry

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.) warns that the American oil industry will be taken over by the government as a public utility if oil companies "continue to take advantage of a foreign situation when their stocks are high and their production capable of great expansion."

Sen. Flanders said "oil companies have raised the price of oil and its products to American customers. On the basis of free enterprise, of which I am an ardent supporter, it can be argued that they can and may charge all that the market will bear."

"If they continue to take advantage of a foreign situation when their stocks are high and their production capable of great expansion, they may look for legislation in the near future in which prices will be determined by the government instead of competition."

Hotrodder Dies In Cemetery Crash

NEW YORK (AP) — A stripped-down car, driven by two young hot rodders, smashed into a row of tombstones in a Bronx cemetery Tuesday. One boy was killed, the other critically injured.

Police said the two youths apparently were testing their contraption on a road in St. Raymond's Cemetery when it went out of control.

Found dead was 17-year-old James Navan of Sterling, Conn., believed to have been the driver. Critically injured was William Schroeder, also 17, of the Bronx.

COLUMBUS (AP)—Police say the body of a woman found last Friday in Alum Creek weighted down with a cement block had been identified as that of Hazel Maxine Gillman, 32.

New State Office Unit Being Urged

COLUMBUS (AP)—A Canton salesman who doubles as a Republican representative in the Ohio House figures the state could save $4 million and, at the same time, pay tribute to Ohio steel workers.

Rep. John Lehmann wants the state to build a $15 million stainless steel skyscraper state office building where the Statehouse annex now stands.

The $4 million saving, he figures, would be in the site for the new state office building now under serious discussion in the Legislature.

The proposed steel structure, Lehmann said Monday night in a prepared statement, is sponsored by northeastern Ohio steel firms. Similar structures, he pointed out, have been built or are under construction in New York and Pittsburgh.

Housed in his proposed structure, Lehmann pointed out, could be new legislative facilities, including new committee rooms, plus new offices for the treasurer and auditor and the secretary of state and new, modern facilities for the Ohio Supreme Court and the attorney general.

Such a new building, says the Canton lawmaker, "would pay for itself in a few years through savings of rentals of state office space in downtown Columbus, not to mention present waste of time taxpayers and state employees made necessary by scattered and inefficient office locations and arrangements."

Rockslide Blocks New York Thruway

ELMSFORD, N.Y. (AP)—An estimated 2,000 tons of rock cascaded on southbound lanes of the New York Thruway Tuesday.

Workmen had two lanes open within hours but William F. Bristow, a thruway division engineer, said it may take a week to clear all debris. Some of the boulders weigh 15 tons.

No one was injured. The slide occurred in Westchester County midway between Elmsford and the Saw Mill River interchange.

Bristow said recent temperature changes affected water seams in the rock formation, "eventually loosening the rock."

Oil Firm Earnings Seen Up Sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) says the recent increase in domestic crude oil prices will boost earnings of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and its affiliates by $100 million.

M. J. Rathbone, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, said a price increase was "long overdue," and he added: "I believe it would have happened in 1957 irrespective of the Suez crisis."

O'Mahoney, presiding over an inquiry by Senate subcommittees on anti-trust matters, said major companies operating the oil lift are giving little attention "to the economic effect upon consumers anywhere."

Toledo Police Break Up Gang

TOLEDO (AP) — Police here say they have broken up a gang of three boys and a girl accused of forging and cashing $2,000 worth of checks in Toledo and Maumee supermarkets in a three-week period.

Detectives said the gang stole a book of blank checks from a residence, bought a rubber stamping outfit and turned out what appeared to be payroll checks from three different firms.

"serious consideration" for measures to:

Permit employers to buy workmen's compensation protection from private companies while leaving jurisdiction over claims and benefits in the hands of the state bureau.

Provide for countrywide collection of school levies.

Permit local governments to enter fields of taxation already occupied by the state, like local auto licensing and local liquor licenses.

Revise the sales tax system, possibly eliminating the use of sales tax stamps together with the redemption of tax stamps at 3 per cent of their face value.

Place responsibility on parents for their children's vandalism.

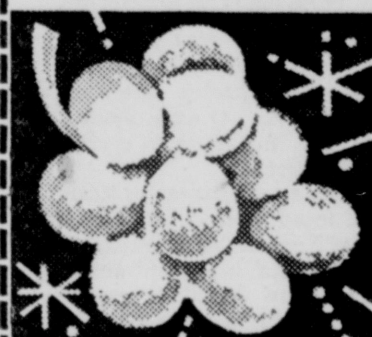

Seek a possible new approach to the question of prior censorship of movies.

Ability To Live With Others Cited

NEW YORK (AP)—Man's ability to live in peace and understanding with his fellow men is the greatest and most urgent challenge to humanity, Louis B. Seltzer, national chairman of Brotherhood Week, said Tuesday.

Addressing a regional luncheon of the National Conference of Christians and Jews here, the Cleveland Press editor said man's inventive genius outpaced his ability to learn how to live with himself and his neighbors in a shrinking world.

Ohio Assembly Leaders Outline Bills On Which Some Action To Be Taken

COLUMBUS (AP)—Leaders of the Republican-dominated 102nd Ohio General Assembly aren't sure what the decisions will be, but they say the Legislature will take "some action" in the next two or three months on a whole host of problems.

UNSOLVED PROBLEM

NAVY EXPERTS have readied an atomic shelter program which, they estimate, would give virtually every American a good chance of survival in case of an enemy attack by nuclear weapons. They total up the cost of the program at approximately $38 billion—which, they say, is easily within the country's means.

All of which is true — if weapons and their delivery remain static. Anyone who would oppose the spending of $38 billion, if refraining from spending this sum would cost the lives of most Americans, ought to have his head examined.

The catch is that there is soon to be a change in delivery of hydrogen bombs of vast explosive power, followed by a poisonous fallout which might blanket most of the country. Big planes would deliver such bombs today. The populace could expect a minimum of three or four hours warning, which would provide ample time to take shelter.

But if the intercontinental missile is perfected and stockpiled in half a dozen years or less, as some informed individuals predict, the situation will be different. That weapon, traveling at incredible speed and incapable of being detected, would give no warnings. Shelters would then be of little or no use.

Science has discovered a principle capable of various applications in the field of total destruction. The defense problem remains unsolved. Until it is solved, it behooves the nation to make certain it is buying something that will really save it.

ANTI-RECESSION FACTORS

MOST STUDENTS of economics continue to assert that to expect a serious recession in the near future is to run counter to logic.

They point out that the combined expenditures of federal, state and local governments will be higher. Favorable employment conditions result in high consumer expenditures.

The mammoth federal highway program will exceed $10 billion annually at its peak in two or three years. Some slack in over-inventoried industries will be taken up by the government's guided missile program which is formalizing hundreds of millions of dollars of contracts now.

Industry's capital improvement program is proceeding at a swift pace despite a few cutbacks. The oil industry will spend this year for exploration and improvements $6.4 billion compared to $6 billion last year.

Creeping inflation is the chief worry, with a few predictions of ultimate disaster unless inflation is checked. Whether anything will come of the warnings is unpredictable.

Of this Barron's Weekly says: "So long as the cold war persists—and with large wage increases in the vast body of three-year labor contracts—it is next to impossible to check a gradual rise in the price level against which common stocks offer the surest protection."

Nothing is so hilarious as references to makes of automobiles in the "low priced" field.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Like all institutions, the Public Authority is a device of government which has some excellent features but which occasionally requires renewed study. The Authority makes it possible for governments to organize self-liquidating businesses, such as toll bridges, toll roads, toll tunnels, etc., which can be privately financed and managed efficiently without politics.

The Authority becomes a menace when it rejects the concept of self-liquidation but instead it amasses its surpluses until it is able to undertake all sorts of projects, some of them of doubtful validity. It also becomes a menace when it arranges for charters which are so broad that the Authority arrogantly rejects any review of its conduct by courts and places itself altogether beyond the law, acting arbitrarily in all matters.

The State of New York has made a study of the Public Authority through the Temporary State Commission on Coordination of State Activities—a very long name which ought to be more accurately descriptive of what the Commission actually does. As this state has created more than 100 Public Authorities, they are important and this seems to be a very thorough study of the subject.

While it is not possible to lump all Authorities under one rule or one criticism because each is different, it is possible to recognize that the time has come to find a common denominator so that they perform their functions solely to the advantage of the citizen.

The first Authority developed in this region is the Port of New York Authority which came into existence in 1921 to solve the problems of this port which includes two states, New York and New Jersey. It would be impossible to say that the Port of New York Authority has not done constructive work in the reorganization of the railroad terminal system, the building of bridges and tunnels, and the development of the airports in this area. But it is not a popular body because it is arrogant and difficult to do business with except on its own terms.

One of the outstanding advantages of the Authority is that it is possible to finance improvements without increasing taxes. By the use of the toll and other fees, the Authority finances itself, getting its revenue from users and not from the general public. Its tolls also provide the means for amortizing the indebtedness of the Authority.

However, in theory the Authority should reduce its tolls and fees whenever it can afford to. The assumption that the users would benefit by having the tolls reduced has been ignored. The report asks:

"... Just what direct benefit the automobile drivers on the Port of New York Authority's George Washington Bridge obtain from the improvement of this authority's Newark docks is not apparent. Unquestionably the driver does benefit from the bridge and its approaches and from the integrated program of highway and crossing development sponsored and carried forward by the Port of New York Authority. However, his benefit from the Newark docks is only that which any taxpayer generally receives from government public works of this sort."

In a word, the toll becomes a tax on the use of the facilities and this was never intended. There surely ought to be a provision for the reduction of tolls in the interest of the users in some ratio to the amortization of the indebtedness.

Mother's Stress Might Cause Defect In Baby

By HERMAN M. DUNDESEN, M.D.

SEVERE emotional stress experienced by some expectant mothers during early pregnancy may be linked to cleft palate, harelip and other congenital abnormalities of the newborn baby.

However, it is thought that adequate amounts of vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, C and other essential nutrients in the diet during pregnancy may help prevent such defects.

These at least are the indications of experiments and tests conducted by two New Jersey doctors, Lyon P. Stream and Lyndon A. Peer.

Suffered Stress

Investigating 232 cases of harelip and cleft palate, they found that most of the mothers suffered some kind of stress during the eighth and tenth week of pregnancy. This is the period during which the maxillae, or upper jaw bones, fuse in the human embryo. The emotional distress took various forms.

In some cases, there was a death in the family; in others, some member of the family lost a job—or there were other family difficulties.

The anxiety of the mother, because this was her first pregnancy, was found in 40 per cent of the cases.

Significant Factors

Illnesses such as measles, chickenpox, diabetes and others, as well as injuries and accidents, also were significant factors in some cases.

Tests with mice further supported the studies.

When mice were exposed to stress at the time when the jaw bones would ordinarily fuse, 87 per cent of them produced offspring with cleft palate.

Doses of Vitamins

However, when other mice also were subjected to stress, but protected by massive doses of vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, C and other nutrients, the incidence of cleft palate was reduced.

Since these investigations were conducted, other studies along these lines have been expanded. Scientists are now seeking to determine whether such congenital abnormalities can be prevented by neutralizing the catalytic effect of the stress reaction with anabolic effect of vitamins and nutrients needed for protein synthesis.

Cleft palate is not uncommon. It occurs in about one of every 770 births.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

I. H.: I recently had an examination and was told I have subcutaneous nodules. What would cause them?

Answer: Swelling under the skin might be due to a variety of causes.

A condition known as von Recklinghausen produces swellings of this type. Multiple tumors of other types might also occur. You should have a biopsy done of these swellings; that is, a bit of tissue should be removed and examined under the microscope to help determine their cause.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

CHAPTER 35

SPRING is like a tonic. It cleanses a man's blood stream. It clears his brain. It is the fulfillment of nature's promise that the death which winter brings is not the eternity it seems; that life returns even to the prairies. But it was more than all that to Chad. The great river was no longer silent. It moved, and the hope was high in him that any day a boat would arrive with letters from Elizabeth, and food.

Chad finished his paper work by midmorning, impatient to be outside. He wondered how Randall had possibly found enough to do to keep him in his office as much as he had. He wondered, too, what General Sherman would think of the thin envelope of reports which would go to St. Louis signed, "Lieut. Chad Endicott, Acting Commander, Fort Butterfield." There were reams of reports signed by Colonel Randall. Much of it, Chad knew, was about trivial matters which General Sherman could skip and probably would.

He went outside, leaving the office door open, and walked through the sparkling May sunshine which filled the quadrangle.

Isabella Randall was sitting in front of her quarters. Chad hesitated, thinking that he should talk to her. There was something that had to be said, but he knew it was not wise to approach her. As far as he knew, there had been no gossip among the men since Randall's death. He had seen to it that no one had any grounds for talk. And there was something else, too. He could not forget the moment when she had been in his arms and he had kissed her. He felt a little guilty about it. He had been a fool. It did not mean he loved Elizabeth any less, but he would not understand if she ever heard.

"Chad," Isabella called. He turned toward her, wishing he had kept on walking. When he reached her, she gave him her smile, murmuring, "I think it's all right, as long as we're out here in plain sight of everyone." She leaned her head against the back of the rocking chair. "Or is it something else, Chad? Are you afraid to talk to me, afraid of yourself?"

He took off his forage cap and stood stiffly before her, his face red with embarrassment. "I suppose I am," he said. She was thinner than she had been, the same as everyone else in the fort, but it did not detract from her beauty. She would go back to St. Louis and she would find a husband, and, God willing, she would be a mother.

UNSOLVED PROBLEM

NAVY EXPERTS have readied an atomic shelter program which, they estimate, would give virtually every American a good chance of survival in case of an enemy attack by nuclear weapons. They total up the cost of the program at approximately $38 billion—which, they say, is easily within the country's means.

All of which is true — if weapons and their delivery remain static. Anyone who would oppose the spending of $38 billion, if refraining from spending this sum would cost the lives of most Americans, ought to have his head examined.

The catch is that there is soon to be a change in delivery of hydrogen bombs of vast explosive power, followed by a poisonous fallout which might blanket most of the country. Big planes would deliver such bombs today. The populace could expect a minimum of three or four hours warning, which would provide ample time to take shelter.

But if the intercontinental missile is perfected and stockpiled in half a dozen years or less, as some informed individuals predict, the situation will be different. That weapon, traveling at incredible speed and incapable of being detected, would give no warnings. Shelters would then be of little or no use.

Science has discovered a principle capable of various applications in the field of total destruction. The defense problem remains unsolved. Until it is solved, it behooves the nation to make certain it is buying something that will really save it.

ANTI-RECESSION FACTORS

MOST STUDENTS of economics continue to assert that to expect a serious recession in the near future is to run counter to logic.

They point out that the combined expenditures of federal, state and local governments will be higher. Favorable employment conditions result in high consumer expenditures.

The mammoth federal highway program will exceed $10 billion annually at its peak in two or three years. Some slack in over-inventoried industries will be taken up by the government's guided missile program which is formalizing hundreds of millions of dollars of contracts now.

Industry's capital improvement program is proceeding at a swift pace despite a few cutbacks. The oil industry will spend this year for exploration and improvements $6.4 billion compared to $6 billion last year.

Creeping inflation is the chief worry, with a few predictions of ultimate disaster unless inflation is checked. Whether anything will come of the warnings is unpredictable.

Of this Barron's Weekly says: "So long as the cold war persists—and with large wage increases in the vast body of three-year labor contracts—it is next to impossible to check a gradual rise in the price level against which common stocks offer the surest protection."

Nothing is so hilarious as references to makes of automobiles in the "low priced" field.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Like all institutions, the Public Authority is a device of government which has some excellent features but which occasionally requires renewed study. The Authority makes it possible for governments to organize self-liquidating businesses, such as toll bridges, toll roads, toll tunnels, etc., which can be privately financed and managed efficiently without politics.

The Authority becomes a menace when it rejects the concept of self-liquidation but instead it amasses its surpluses until it is able to undertake all sorts of projects, some of them of doubtful validity. It also becomes a menace when it arranges for charters which are so broad that the Authority arrogantly rejects any review of its conduct by courts and places itself altogether beyond the law, acting arbitrarily in all matters.

The State of New York has made a study of the Public Authority through the Temporary State Commission on Coordination of State Activities—a very long name which ought to be more accurately descriptive of what the Commission actually does. As this state has created more than 100 Public Authorities, they are important and this seems to be a very thorough study of the subject.

While it is not possible to lump all Authorities under one rule or one criticism because each is different, it is possible to recognize that the time has come to find a common denominator so that they perform their functions solely to the advantage of the citizen.

The first Authority developed in this region is the Port of New York Authority which came into existence in 1921 to solve the problems of this port which includes two states, New York and New Jersey. It would be impossible to say that the Port of New York Authority has not done constructive work in the reorganization of the railroad terminal system, the building of bridges and tunnels, and the development of the airports in this area. But it is not a popular body because it is arrogant and difficult to do business with except on its own terms.

One of the outstanding advantages of the Authority is that it is possible to finance improvements without increasing taxes. By the use of the toll and other fees, the Authority finances itself, getting its revenue from users and not from the general public. Its tolls also provide the means for amortizing the indebtedness of the Authority.

However, in theory the Authority should reduce its tolls and fees whenever it can afford to. The assumption that the users would benefit by having the tolls reduced has been ignored. The report asks:

"... Just what direct benefit the automobile drivers on the Port of New York Authority's George Washington Bridge obtain from the improvement of this authority's Newark docks is not apparent. Unquestionably the driver does benefit from the bridge and its approaches and from the integrated program of highway and crossing development sponsored and carried forward by the Port of New York Authority. However, his benefit from the Newark docks is only that which any taxpayer generally receives from government public works of this sort."

In a word, the toll becomes a tax on the use of the facilities and this was never intended. There surely ought to be a provision for the reduction of tolls in the interest of the users in some ratio to the amortization of the indebtedness.

DIET AND HEALTH

Mother's Stress Might Cause Defect In Baby

By HERMAN H. DUNDEEN, M.D.

SEVERE emotional stress experienced by some expectant mothers during early pregnancy may be linked to cleft palate, harelip and other congenital abnormalities of the newborn baby.

However, it is thought that adequate amounts of vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, C and other essential nutrients in the diet during pregnancy may help prevent such defects. These at least are the indications of experiments and tests conducted by two New Jersey doctors, Lyon P. Stream and Lyndon A. Peer.

Suffered Stress

Investigating 252 cases of harelip and cleft palate, they found that most of the mothers suffered some kind of stress during the eighth and tenth week of pregnancy. This is the period during which the maxillae, or upper jaw bones, fuse in the human embryo.

The emotional stress took various forms. In some cases, there was a death in the family; in others, some member of the family lost a job—or there were other family difficulties.

The anxiety of the mother, because this was her first pregnancy, was found in 40 per cent of the cases.

Significant Factors

Illnesses such as measles, chickenpox, diabetes and others, as well as injuries and accidents, also were significant factors in some cases. Tests with mice further supported the studies.

When mice were exposed to stress at the time when the jaw bones would ordinarily fuse, 87 per cent of them produced offspring with cleft palate.

Doses of Vitamins

However, when other mice also were subjected to stress, but protected by massive doses of vitamins B<sub>1</sub>, B<sub>2</sub>, C and other nutrients, the incidence of cleft palate was reduced.

Since these investigations were conducted, other studies along these lines have been expanded. Scientists are now seeking to determine whether such congenital abnormalities can be prevented by neutralizing the catabolic effect of the stress reaction with anabolic effect of vitamins and nutrients needed for protein synthesis.

Cleft palate is not uncommon. It occurs in about one of every 770 births.

The age of the parents doesn't seem to be a factor.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Q: I recently had an examination and was told I have subcutaneous nodules. What would cause them?

A: Swelling under the skin might be due to a variety of causes. A condition known as von Recklinghausen produces swellings of this type. Multiple tumors of other types might also occur. You should have a biopsy done of these swellings; that is, a bit of tissue should be removed and examined under the microscope to help determine their cause.

He took off his forage cap and stood stiffly before her, his face red with embarrassment. "I suppose I am," he said. She was thinner than she had been, the same as everyone else in the fort, but it did not detract from her beauty. She would go back to St. Louis and she would find a husband, and, God willing, she would be happy. He turned toward her, wishing he had kept on walking. When he reached her, she gave him her smile, murmuring, "I think it's all right, as long as we're out here in plain sight of everyone." She leaned her head against the back of the rocking chair. "Or is it something else, Chad? Are you afraid to talk to me, afraid of yourself?"

far happier than she had been with Randall.

"You have given me no chance to talk to you since the day of the funeral," she said. "Sometimes I wish you weren't quite so well-circumspect."

"I have to be," he said.

"Of course," she smiled again. "I've had a lot of time to think, living alone as I have for the last few weeks. I can't help wondering what our future would have been if you had never met Elizabeth."

She gave him a direct look, her face very grave. "But there is no sense in thinking about the might-have-beens. When I get back to St. Louis, I'll call on your Elizabeth and tell her she is a lucky girl. The second thing I'll do is to call on General Sherman and tell him about the fine job you've done here. You deserve a promotion, and it would give me a great deal of pleasure if I could help you get it."

"That's kind of you," he said. "Isabella, what I came over to say was that a boat should arrive any time. I hope you'll be ready to go back on it."

"Why, you sound as if you want to get rid of me, Chad," she shrugged. "I'll be ready. I'll be glad to leave, but I wonder about you. You wouldn't be satisfied to go back to Jefferson Barracks, would you?"

"No, I belong here," he said. He turned and walked rapidly away toward his quarters. An exclamation from one of the guards brought Chad's attention to a man running for the metal triangle used as an alarm. Chad raced to one of the ladders and climbed to the blockhouse. Peering through a loophole, he saw Chad riding in from the east, urging his mount frantically.

Chad went back down the ladder. The instant the men pushed the heavy gate open, Chad pounded into the stockade and hit the ground, running before his lathered mount could stop. He jabbed a finger vigorously in a downward direction, shouting, "It's happened, Loo! They've got a boat hung up on a sand bar and all the Indians in tarnation is tryin' to board it."

"How far?"

"A mile or two by land. You'd of heard the shootin' if the wind was blowin' this way. I heard the commotion and got up on the ridge to look. Cut lip, I reckon. He must have a couple hundred bucks. Purty well gunned, from the racket they're makin'."

Chad spun on his heel, barking, "Mullvane, Anderson, Get the men ready. Double issue of ammunition. Get those small mountain howitzers out and mount them."

There was no time to lose. Chad led his men down the slope at full charge, firing as they ran. The men who manned howitzers remained behind at a higher elevation to cover their comrades.

The Indians had not seen the soldiers. Now caught in a cross-fire between the men aboard the steamer and Chad's force, they scrambled off the boat, those who could regain their mounts, the others wading ashore, holding their guns high over their heads.

For a time the Indians were disorganized, completely surprised by this attack from their rear. Then Chad, running at Chad's side, yelled, "Look out, Loo! They're gonna hit us."

"Silent River" reaches its exciting climax tomorrow.

Mrs. Barton Deming Chosen President Of Monday Club

Mrs. George Fishpaw Presents Program

Mrs. Barton Deming was elected president during the February meeting of Monday Club, which was held in the Trustees room of the Library.

Others elected to office for the coming year were: Mrs. Bishop Given, first vice-president; Mrs. Harold Anderson, second vice-president; Mrs. Joseph Adkins, recording secretary; Mrs. Robert Young, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kenneth Robbins, treasurer; Mrs. T. L. Huston, member-at-large and Mrs. Anna Chandler, historian.

The program committee is: Mrs. Ralph Dunkle, chairman, Miss Nelle Oesterle, Mrs. Carl Bennett, and Mrs. Donald Collins, music. Mrs. Milton Patterson presided during the business session. Candy was offered for sale to the members, with the proceeds to go to the Pickaway County Association of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. O. E. Barr, chairman of the program for the evening introduced Mrs. George Fishpaw, who presented a paper entitled "Courage in Calico."

"Americans easily forget how short a journey in time they have come from the great overland trek which gave our country its present vast span from ocean to ocean."

"Actually it is only about a hundred years since the first two white women dared the peril of that 'foreign' land between our fertile Ohio valley and the Pacific coast. They were preceded by numerous Indian women, who had guided many palefaces through wilderness. When gold and silver were found in the Western land, they were followed by adventuresses and dance hall girls. However, the great majority of Westward moving women were the wives and the mothers of the covered wagon trains. History being written by men gives little credit to these heroic figures. While many are unknown and unnamed—the names of Mary Walker, Eliza Alding, Narcissa Whitman, Abigail Dunaway, and Bethenia Owens do not yield to anonymity. Through the foresight of their daughters and granddaughters many of their letters and diaries were preserved to bring to us a true, unvarnished account of this great Exodus."

"From one of these diaries we learn the story of how a Mrs. Longmire, walking ahead of a wagon train in the midst of the untouched coastal forest, carrying a babe and leading a three year old child; came suddenly upon a grizzled woodsman, who blanched to the beard at the sight of her, and cried:

"'Woman, where did you come from? Are there any more of you? Turn back! You can't get through this way! There ain't a blade of grass for fifty miles.'"

"But Mrs. Longmire simply walked past him with her face set to the west, and as she passed said only 'We can't go back, we've got to go forward.'"

"Abigail Scott Dunaway dedicated herself to riding the dusty roads and rowing the rivers, preaching equal rights for women in cross-road school houses, steamboat parlors and churches. Mary Walker, considered the third white woman across the Rockies, worked ceaselessly to Christianize the

Friends Entertain At Bridal Shower For Patty Graham

A bridal shower was held honoring Miss Patty Graham, bride-elect of Mr. William Boston.

Hostesses for the shower were Mrs. David Bircher, Mrs. James Arledge and Miss Marsha Morgan. The event took place in the home of Miss Morgan, N. Washington St.

Games were conducted with prizes being awarded to Miss Mary Jo Smith and Miss Nancy Ankrom.

Red and white decorations were carried out in a Valentine theme. Guests for the event were: Mrs. Clifford Davis, Mrs. Marie Goodman, Miss Mary Jo Smith, Miss Nancy Ankrom, Mrs. Berman Wertman, Mrs. Stillman Morrison, Mrs. James Pierce, Mrs. Eleanor Gerhardt, Anne and Janice Perdon.

Miss Rita Edgington, Miss Linda Dresbach, Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Russell Evans, Miss Beverly Knecht, Mrs. Paul Allison, Mrs. Tom Strawser, Miss Lydia DeLong, Mrs. Jim Marshall, Mrs. James Palm, Mrs. Robert Edgington and Mrs. Fred Davis.

savage Indians of the Oregon country. Bethenia Owens Adair, the first woman doctor, was almost tarred and feathered for performing an autopsy on a male corpse.

"Of different temperament and characteristics were the humble and reverent Belgian nuns who settled in the nearby mission of St. Paul on the Willamette river in 1843. Six had set sail from Antwerp for the untamed shores of the great Pacific Ocean to bring enlightenment to the 'Children of the Forest'."

"In direct contrast to the timid and gentle nuns were the dance hall girls, many of them former bar-maids in England where they were intrigued by the tales of gold and gaiety on the new continent."

"A tale of the early settling of the Northwest would not be complete without a few words about the Mercer girls, those adventurous spinsters who were willing to sail 7000 miles around the Horn to become schoolteachers, nurses, seamstresses, music teachers and, if lucky—wives of frontier men. Asa Mercer agreed to provide only women of good moral character and reputation for the sum of $300, which paid for the ladies fare and compensated Mr. Mercer for his time and trouble."

"These were the women who made the beginnings of our beautiful Northwestern country. Women from all walks of life, the good and the bad. Perhaps the greatest tribute that may be paid to their memory is, that they left the known for the unknown, to battle valiantly and successfully that we women of today might know the freedom and luxury shared by no other race of women on earth. They made it a certainty. Let us never allow them to have given so much in vain for in the words of Abigail Dunaway, 'The debt that each generation owes to the past, it must pay to the future.'"

Head-Hugging, Small Hats, Headline Spring Fashions

The Parisian haute couture has gone all out for head-hugging hats for Spring and Summer, and predicts that there will be few of the bulky, voluminous models seen that were so much the fashion last Fall.

Regardless of their preference for the smaller models, even these trend-setters have shown a few picture hats, and larger bretons for such occasions as Summer weddings and garden parties.

Chanda gives a dramatic new tilt to one of the small versions, the youthful tricorn shown above. It is shown placed way back on the head and slanted to one side. This tricorn is made of bluebell linen straw that has a pert self straw bow. A filmy brow veil adds a flattering touch.

There is certainly something quite new and different about the melon-shaped toque designed by Christian Dior. This navy straw-cloth is very much in the head-hugging tradition and features a very tall crown. Deep pleats forming sections of the crown are threaded with a band of navy gros-grain ribbon tied in a bow in back. The hat is worn off the forehead but practically covers the hairline all around.

The big Breton is really for dressier occasions, though it can be worn with suits for important luncheons in town as well as for tea parties outdoors. This large Spring Breton was fashioned by Mr. Arnold. It is made of silky white treebark straw and has an upturned brim, decorated with a wreath of full-brown blossoms and green leaves.

Approximately 40 subordinate and juvenile members attended the regular session of Star Grange.

Worthy Master Harold Furniss presided during the business meeting.

A contribution was made to the heart fund and two proposals were read for membership.

Mrs. Raymond Grabill, chairman, gave a report for the home economics committee. Miss Nancy Neff of the youth committee announced that the Grange basketball tournament will be held in the near future. Mrs. Frances G. Neff reported that donations had been made to the flood relief in southern Kentucky.

Miss Margaret Anderson, lecturer, reported on the lecturer's conference, held in Columbus. She announced that the County drill team had performed at the conference.

Members of the Grange made plans to decorate for the basketball banquet, which is scheduled for March 8 in Monroe Township School auditorium. The group also decided to buy four new folding tables to be used at the banquet.

Thank you notes were read from Mr. and Mrs. Robert See and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finch for their wedding presents from the Grange.

Mr. Furniss announced that Star

40 Attend Meet Of Star Grange

Approximately 40 subordinate and juvenile members attended the regular session of Star Grange.

Worthy Master Harold Furniss presided during the business meeting.

A contribution was made to the heart fund and two proposals were read for membership.

Mrs. Raymond Grabill, chairman, gave a report for the home economics committee. Miss Nancy Neff of the youth committee announced that the Grange basketball tournament will be held in the near future. Mrs. Frances G. Neff reported that donations had been made to the flood relief in southern Kentucky.

Miss Margaret Anderson, lecturer, reported on the lecturer's conference held in Columbus. She announced that the County drill team had performed at the conference.

Members of the Grange made plans to decorate for the basketball banquet, which is scheduled for March 8 in Monroe Township School auditorium. The group also decided to buy four new folding tables to be used at the banquet.

Thank you notes were read from Mr. and Mrs. Robert See and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finch for their wedding presents from the Grange.

Mr. Furniss announced that Star

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's meeting with congressional leaders today is an encore. He met with them 51 days ago on the same problem: the Middle East. In that time the problem has deepened.

So has confusion over this country's thinking on the Middle East, including Israel. For 51 days the administration — or, rather, Secretary of State Dulles — has talked almost continually on the Middle East.

In that time the cherished Democratic-Republican bipartisanship on foreign policy has been badly split. And Dulles has been treated to the most angry Democratic criticism of his four years in office, even to being called a "liar."

If Dulles had talked less, and more to the point, there would now be a clearer understanding at home and abroad of what the administration has in mind on the Middle East in general and Israel in particular.

Instead of letting Democratic congressional leaders be the first to know of the program and tell how they felt, the administration — meaning Dulles' State Department — "leaked" it to a newspaper Dec. 28.

Democrats have indicated since they consider this an attempt to build up public pressure on them for approval before Eisenhower ever asked for their views. His program was a three-in-one package. He wanted congressional approval for:

• Huge economic aid to the Middle East, although who'll get it, and how and why, is not clear; gifts of arms to certain Middle Eastern countries; and use of American armed forces to stop Communist aggression in the area.

There followed many days of testimony by Dulles and other administration officials before congressional committees, publicly and behind closed doors. In all he said Dulles followed one consistent line: vagueness. It irritated Democrats.

The House has approved the program. The Senate, starting debate on it this week, will probably put some strings on it.

Meanwhile, something else had been happening.

Israel had ignored the United Nations' demand that it quit territory claimed by Egypt, contending it first must have guarantees against Egyptian attack. The Arab members of the U.N. were getting set to ask for sanctions against Israel for defying the world organization.

But the U.N. has not even considered sanctions against a big power — Russia — which ignored the U.N. demand that it get out of Hungary.

Israel not only is a friend of the United States, which helped create it, but has a lot of friends in this country, including members of Congress, who oppose sanctions against it.

But if the United States refuses to vote sanctions against Israel, it would antagonize the Arabs at the moment the administration is trying to win them over with Eisenhower's program.

In the hope of avoiding such a showdown, Dulles asked Israel to pull back its troops. But Israel re-

10 Cadets Linked To Cincy Fire

CINCINNATI (AP) — A juvenile court officer said today a 16-year-old cadet has admitted he and nine other boys planned to set fire to an Ohio Military Institute dormitory and that one of the group finally started the blaze early last Saturday after the others "chickened out."

The 10 youths ran away from the school Monday. Three of them returned to the school within a short time but the other seven still have not returned.

School officials said parents have found five of the boys at Loudonville, one at Cleveland and one at Akron.

The juvenile court officer said the 16-year-old lad's story of the fire has been confirmed by other cadets and disproves a previous statement by 15-year-old boy that he started the fire.

The blaze caused only about $300 damage but routed 50 cadets from their beds.

The reason for starting the fire was not disclosed and Lt. Col. Donald D. Davis, superintendent of the school, said an investigation would be made to learn "what's troubling the boys."

Monday Mrs. T. R. Gormley said she picked up several of the runaway boys in her car and that they told her the cadet who originally admitted starting the blaze had nothing to do with it.

fused Dulles just as it had refused the U.N.

Now the squeeze is on. The Democratic Policy Committee in the Senate voted unanimously Tuesday against sanctions on Israel. And Eisenhower's own Republican Senate leader, William Knowland of California, has come out flatly against sanctions.

Dulles will now have to talk his way out of this one, or get in deeper.

U.S. 'Cannot Win' Global Fight Alone

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Philippine Ambassador Carlos Romulo told the Mississippi Valley World Trade Conference Tuesday night that America is engaged in a life and death global struggle that no nation — no matter how powerful or rich — can hope to win alone.

Romulo said that President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and Vice President Nixon realized this situation. That is the reason, he said, Nixon and Dulles travel so much.

"National friendship cannot be taken for granted; it must be cultivated and nurtured," Romulo said.

COLUMBUS (AP) — The Ohio Department of Highways may move into the building formerly occupied by the Ohio Turnpike Commission, reports say.

The board previously rejected attempts to buy the structure for $275,000, saying it believed further expansion of property in Columbus should be deferred.

Ohio House Schedules Vote On Purchase Of 'Malabar'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio will take a long step today toward deciding the fate of famed Malabar Farm, home of the late conservationist and Pulitzer Prize-winning author, Louis Bromfield.

The House will vote on a resolution creating a committee to study the possibility of state purchase of the 640-acre farm. It is in Richland County.

The price tag on the farm, resurrected by Bromfield from eroded and depleted acreage, is $145,000. If the state buys the farm, it probably would be used as the site of a new state university.

The House also scheduled a vote on an emergency measure to permit the trustees of the state universities to buy sites near the campuses for dormitories and other university buildings.

The House approved Tuesday and sent to the Senate a pair of bills to improve the pensions for widows and orphans of police and firemen. Both passed unanimously.

One bill boosts pensions for widows of policemen and firemen from $60 to $75 a month. It increases pensions for orphans from $30 to $35 a month while removing the present $90 limit in that bracket. If the proposal becomes law, some 2,700 widows and 400 orphans probably would receive increases.

The other bill would base a fireman's pension on the five years of his greatest earnings. Now it is based on his earnings in the five years immediately preceding his retirement. Police now have the same pension formula as the bill for firemen proposes.

Introduction of 53 more bills Tuesday increased the number of proposed laws this session to 577 with exactly two weeks left before the deadline. The total two years ago was above 1,300, but it is possible that number still may be exceeded this session. Bills offered Tuesday included proposals to:

• Transfer the control of the criminal identification bureau from the Department of Mental Hygiene and Correction to the attorney general.

• Require a vote of the people of the political subdivision involved before an income tax could be levied.

• Tax juke boxes $50 a year to raise funds for retarded children.

• Cut from five to two years the state's power to assess and collect back taxes.

• Limit a person, firm or corporation to two over-the-bar liquor permits.

• Require pawnbrokers to keep thumbprint records of pledgers and sellers.

• Permit the state highway director to hire outside help for the actual buying of highway rights-of-way. This is a bill sponsored by the administration of Gov. C. William O'Neill.

• Extend the jurisdiction of the Mansfield Municipal Court.

• Require bread wrappers to carry the date of baking.

• Limit the tax commissioner's power to correct tax returns to two years. (A half-dozen bills cover various taxes.)

• Establish uniform markings of all traffic lights in Ohio after Jan. 1, 1958, requiring words "stop" on red lights; "go" on green and "caution" on amber.

• Permit the superintendent of each state mental hospital to appoint an advisory council.

• Require the posting of a bond when application is made for a reassessment under the axle-mile tax.

• Permit a candidate seeking a recount to wait until the recount starts to designate the precincts to be recounted.

• Permit a six-month driver license for an epileptic.

Wind Erosion Hits Wider U.S. Acreage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department reports that 453,000 additional acres of land in the drought-plagued Great Plains were damaged by soil blowing in January. This brought the total damage this season to 3,193,000 acres compared with 1,032,000 to the same date last year.

A survey showed further, the agency said, that another 29,300,000 acres were in condition to blow as of Feb. 1 because of dry surface conditions, lack of cover and crop residues, and poor condition of growing wheat. This compares with 20,369,000 acres in condition to blow on the same date a year ago.

Top TV Quizzers To Pay Heavy Tax On Lush Winnings

NEW YORK (AP) — Tax experts figure that television's top money winner, 11-year-old Lennie Ross, will keep somewhere between $60,000 and $70,000 of the $164,000 he walked away with.

The calendar is a big help to the young stock-market expert since he won $100,000 on a quiz show last year and the balance on another show this year. By declaring his income in separate years he saves about $5,000, the experts estimate. They say his taxes will be $60-65,000 for last year, and $32-36,000 this year.

Not so lucky is Columbia University instructor Charles Van Doren, who has won $143,000 so far.

His winnings will be paid this year and that makes him liable to a $100,000 to $110,000 tax bite. This will leave the $4,400-a-year teacher about $40,000.

Cagey Casey Adds Power To Mound Staff

Yankees, Athletics Complete 13-Player Swap For '57 Season

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel, the master manager who says "I've never seen a man yet who couldn't use a pitcher," today can add Art Ditmar and Bobby Shantz to a staff he already had figured deep enough to bring his New York Yankees still another American League pennant.

Ditmar, a 27-year-old right-hander, and Shantz, a stubby, 31-year-old southpaw, were the key men for the Yankees in a 13-player trade with the Kansas City Athletics Tuesday.

Two weeks ago Stengel confidently listed "my seven pitchers" — Whitey Ford, Don Larsen, Bob Turley, Johnny Kucks, Tom Sturdivant, Bob Grim and Tommy Byrne.

He left no doubt that he considered the staff had enough depth to win him an eighth pennant.

Along with the two new front-line pitchers — two, that is, if Shantz can lose his sore arm troubles — the Yankees also received infielder Wayne Belardi, southpaw pitcher Jack McMahon and two players yet to be named. At least one of the "unknowns" is ticketed for the Yanks' Denver term in the American Assn. along with Belardi and McMahon.

In return, New York shipped along with Belardi and McMahon.

In return, New York shipped outfielder Irv Noren, shortstop Billy Hunter and second baseman Milt Graff and pitchers Maury McDermott, Tom Morgan and Rip Coleman to the A's, who also will be assigned another player by April 15. The three pitchers were second-line relievers in Stengel's book.

In the original trade setup, New York also was to have received infielder Cletis Boyer. It wasn't until after the swap was announced that the two clubs were advised by the league that Boyer, as a $50,000 bonus player in 1955, couldn't switch clubs until his two-year bonus period runs out May 31.

A Yankee spokesman said the club would receive a "substitute" player for Boyer — or perhaps Boyer himself — by the June 15 trading deadline.

Stengel commented that "Kansas City got a better club by making this deal," the largest in the majors since the Yanks and Baltimore shuffled 17 players around — with Larsen and Turley going to New York — Nov. 18, 1954.

"They got a doubleplay combination in Graff (who hit .318 at Birmingham in the Southern Assn. last season) and Hunter," said Case, "and they got three experienced pitchers. That's what they needed most — a doubleplay combination and pitching."

"Of course, they didn't put a gun to my head. We knew what we were after — Ditmar and Shantz. Everything depends on Shantz. If his arm comes through I've got a good deal. If not, I'm hooked and it will be my fault because we know all about his bad arm."

The Yankees, confronted by a big payroll and a number of players dissatisfied with contract offers, had signed only Hunter for '57 among the players traded to the A's. Said personnel director Lee MacPhail: "We have too many big league players. We had to cut down."

Only Ditmar was as yet unsigned for '57 by the A's among the players involved in the trade, and he shouldn't prove trouble some to the Yankees.

The A's, were quite happy with the deal. Both President Arnold Johnson and manager Lou Boudreau feel they have strengthened their infield with Hunter, 28, and Graff, 26, and now have a suitable pitching staff with McDermott, a 28-year-old southpaw who was 2-6 in '56; Coleman, 25, a 3-5 right-

Individual Scoring Crown Appears Hard To Chalk Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The individual scoring championship in major college basketball this season is to break a leg, the idea being to sit out the rest of the schedule content with present averages.

Every time the contenders take a crack at upping the ante, it seems they slip a bit.

Tuesday night, for instance, South Carolina's Grady Wallace scored only a 50-27 points in an 85-77 victory over Furman which sliced 16 of a point off his nation-leading average. He's still top man with 30.41 for 22 games, but he was 30.57 in 21.

The night before, Wilt Chamberlain of Kansas had a chance for the lead, but skidded from second to fifth with only 11 points. Last Saturday, Columbia's Chet Forte missed the boat with only 19 and slipped from second to third.

That leaves Mississippi's Joe Gibbon and Seattle's Elgin Baylor as the only contenders to move up on their own of late.

At the moment, Forte is No. 2 with a 29.56 average going into tonight's game against Yale. Then comes Gibbon at 29.33, Baylor at 29.13 and Chamberlain at 29.00 in what Homer Cooke, head man of NCAA Statistics Bureau, terms the closest race in memory.

Not all "races" are races this season, however. Unbeaten and top-ranked North Carolina, for example, clinched first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings with its 21st victory drubbing erstwhile champ North Carolina State 86-57.

West Virginia accomplished the same result in the Southern Conference, although idle Tuesday night. Virginia Tech killed Washington & Lee's chances 54-46.

Connecticut became the first entry in the NCAA's University Division tournament by pouring in 18 points in the last three minutes to belt Massachusetts 90-77 for the Uconn's ninth Yankee Conference title in 10 years.

Elsewhere, sixth-ranked Southern Methodist, with Bobby Mills scoring 21 and Jim Krebs 20, whipped Texas A&M 71-55 to set up a showdown game with Rice for the Southwest Conference crown and NCAA berth Saturday night. Rice, the runner-up, stayed alive by defeating Arkansas 82-69.

Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves is the second youngest player to win the National League batting title. Brooklyn's Pete Reiser was one month, 14 days younger when he won the title at age 22.

11 Names Added To Grid Hall Of Fame

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J. (AP)—The relatively new National Football Hall of Fame had 110 former players and officials representing 57 colleges on its membership list today after the addition of eleven new names by its Honors Court.

Among the team-full of onetime gridiron talent announced by the selectors Tuesday is movie cowboy Johnny Mack Brown, who starred as a halfback in Alabama's 20-19 Rose Bowl victory over Washington in 1929.

Others added to the hall, located on the Rutgers University campus, were Ken Strong of New York University, George Pfann of Cornell, Erny Pinckert of Southern California, the late Marshall Newell of Harvard, the late Hunter Carpenter of Virginia Tech, Peter Mauthe of Penn State, Ira (Buck) Rodgers of West Virginia, William Corbus of Stanford, J. A. C. Weller of Princeton, and Dick Wildung of Minnesota.

Elections to the hall began in 1951 on the basis of voting by the organization's membership, recommendations by coaches, athletic directors, fellow players and sports writers, and nominations to All-American teams. To be eligible, a player must have been graduated from his college for at least 10 years.

Yale currently tops the list with nine representatives while Harvard has six, Michigan, Minnesota and Princeton five each, Stanford and Army four each, and Penn, Notre Dame, Alabama, Southern California, and Chicago three apiece.

Pastrano Set For Holman Duel

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Fourth-ranked heavyweight Willie Pastrano pits his lightning fists and agility against the sledge-hammer punch of eighth-ranked Johnny Holman in a nationally televised 10-round match tonight.

Pastrano, touting a 45-4-4 record, and reckoned for a title shot in a year or so, is installed as the 5-17 favorite. Holman, fighting to remain a longshot title contender, lists a 30-13-1 record but his wins came against worthier opponents and include 18 knockouts.

Pastrano, 26, and Morgan, a 26-year-old right-handed reliever who was 6-7.

Big Scores, Tight Battles Color Ohio College Contests

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Big scores and tight games seemed to characterize Tuesday night's college basketball activity. Two games in Tuesday night's crowded schedule had to go into overtime, and in two other games, a couple of quintets went over the 100-point mark in chalking up victories.

Denison's Ron Gearhart scored with 20 seconds remaining in the overtime period to lead the Big Red to a 78-77 Ohio Conference victory over the Kenyon Lords at Granville.

At Ada, with a scant two seconds remaining in the overtime period, Ohio Northern's Merrill Castle tossed in a field goal to give the Polar Bears a 79-78 win over Bluffton in a Mid-Ohio League game.

Hitting the big scores were Wooster College, with a 109-74 win over Washington & Jefferson at Wooster, and Defiance College, with a 107-71 triumph over the Wilberforce Bulldogs. It was the 25th straight home court win for the Yellow Jackets.

Playing at home, Kent State came from behind with less than three minutes to play to defeat Bowling Green 80-75 for its second Mid-American Conference victory of the season.

In three games played at Cleveland, Muskingum rolled to an easy 84-68 decision over Case Tech. Oberlin held on to a one-point lead to defeat Western Reserve 58-57, and St. Vincent (Pa.) defeated John Carroll 75-73.

At Ashland, Findlay College whipped Ashland College 80-72. At Cedarville, Wilmington held off a late drive by Cedarville to gain an 84-68 victory in a Mid-Ohio League game, and at Detroit, Youngstown trounced Lawrence Tech 101-74.

CALDWELL (AP)—The Noble County basketball tournament was called off Tuesday as a precaution against the further spread of contagious meningitis.

Dr. N. S. Reed, Noble County health officer, said a high school girl came down with the illness last Wednesday.

He said the tournament can probably be resumed Thursday when the seven-day incubation period of the disease will have passed.

berlain of Kansas had a chance for the lead, but skidded from second to fifth with only 11 points. Last Saturday, Columbia's Chet Forte missed the boat with only 19 and slipped from second to third.

That leaves Mississippi's Joe Gibbon and Seattle's Elgin Baylor as the only contenders to move up on their own of late.

At the moment, Forte is No. 2 with a 29.56 average going into tonight's game against Yale. Then comes Gibbon at 29.33, Baylor at 29.13 and Chamberlain at 29.00 in what Homer Cooke, head man of NCAA Statistics Bureau, terms the closest race in memory.

Not all "races" are races this season, however. Unbeaten and top-ranked North Carolina, for example, clinched first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference standings with its 21st victory drubbing erstwhile champ North Carolina State 86-57.

West Virginia accomplished the same result in the Southern Conference, although idle Tuesday night. Virginia Tech killed Washington & Lee's chances 54-46.

Connecticut became the first entry in the NCAA's University Division tournament by pouring in 18 points in the last three minutes to belt Massachusetts 90-77 for the Uconn's ninth Yankee Conference title in 10 years.

Elsewhere, sixth-ranked Southern Methodist, with Bobby Mills scoring 21 and Jim Krebs 20, whipped Texas A&M 71-55 to set up a showdown game with Rice for the Southwest Conference crown and NCAA berth Saturday night. Rice, the runner-up, stayed alive by defeating Arkansas 82-69.

Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves is the second youngest player to win the National League batting title. Brooklyn's Pete Reiser was one month, 14 days younger when he won the title at age 22.

Elections to the hall began in 1951 on the basis of voting by the organization's membership, recommendations by coaches, athletic directors, fellow players and sports writers, and nominations to All-American teams. The Ohio Division of Wildlife will join the State Wildlife Federation and National Wildlife Federation March 17-23 in focusing public attention on conservation problems. The occasion will be National Wildlife Week, which is sponsored annually by the National Wildlife Federation with the help of state and local affiliates.
Hayden W. Olds, chief, Ohio Division of Wildlife, said special emphasis will be placed this year on the need for protection of wildlife living places. National Wildlife Week, he explained, is designed to start people thinking in terms of the capability of land to meet wildlife living needs as well as the growing outdoor recreational requirements of the public.
National Wildlife Week, which has been sponsored annually since 1938 by the National Wildlife Federation, has as its theme this year "Homes For Wildlife."
The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced a plan to double camping and other recreational facilities in the national forest within the next five years to meet a steadily building demand for such facilities.

THE FIVE YEAR recreation plan was released following the President's budget message to Congress which recommended financial support of the project to start this year. At the request of Congress a comprehensive survey of needs in the 150 national forests throughout the country has been made.
Operation Outdoors is a double barreled program. First, it aims at solving the problem of ever-increasing family outdoor activities such as picnicking and camping in the national forests. A second part will deal with improvement and management of wildlife habitat in cooperation with state fish and game departments.
How many bow hunters are there in Ohio today? Accurate information is needed.
Archery hunting is a new and growing sport in our state. Its importance was brought to the attention of the public when bow hunters took to the field during the last deer season. However, there are other kinds of archery hunting (and fishing) as the bow men seek to bring almost every kind of game to bag with a bow.
How many bow hunters are there? What do they hunt with a bow? How many days do they hunt each year? Will the archery enthusiasts be able to come up with a suitable method which will give accurate results?
Overly optimistic guesses serve no purpose as this is not an attempt to pad the returns. Archery leaders are urged to determine how many bow hunters there are in Ohio and what they hunt and how much they take.

PERSONS interested in helping supply this information should contact Paul Jordan, Lucasville, who is attempting to gather this information and also to organize Ohio bow hunters.
According to reports reaching the Columbus office of the Ohio Division of Wildlife, ice fishing in Sandusky Bay and the Island Area of Lake Erie has been only fair during the past week.
Some perch are being taken at Whites Landing and the Bay Bridge, using minnows as bait. Crappies 5 to 8 inches in length are also being taken at Whites Landing. Perch are being caught in the Put-In-Bay area but the walleye fishing has not materialized as yet.

The month of February is usually considered the best ice fishing month in Lake Erie and it is during this time when most walleyes are taken in shanty town.

The national wildlife federation is now distributing the 1957 series of their annual wildlife conservation stamps. Wildlife homes are given special attention in this year's issue.

Six of the thirty-six stamps in the series, are reproductions of water-color paintings by such leading artists as Roger Tory Peterson, Roger Preuss, Maynard Reece and Bob Hines, and show typical forms of natural wildlife homes. Another group of stamps shows wildlife homes of the kind that can be provided by man in conservation projects.

THE SERIES was started in 1938 by Ding Darling, noted cartoonist and first president of the national wildlife federation. Since then the sale of the stamps has financed scores of educational and research projects and helped build the federation into one of the leading conservation organizations in the country.

Other constructive uses for which monies derived from the sale of stamps is used by the federation include: financing conservation workshops for school teachers and youth groups; preparing and distributing teaching aids and reference materials to schools; and an authoritative legislative reporting service covering all bills and actions of Congress that affect natural resources.

The Milwaukee Braves led the 1956 National League race on 121 days of the 167-day season and were tied for the lead four other days.

Ohio Dems File Query On Tire Buying

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio House Democrats today asked the new state highway chief to answer a half dozen questions about state rejection of bids for the purchase of tires.

The Democratic Watchdog Committee sent the questions to Charles M. Noble, Gov. C. William O'Neill's secretary in charge of highways.

Committee Chairman Frank M. Gorman (D - Cuyahoga), said members wanted to find out why the department threw out all bids, including the lowest by Cooper Tire and Rubber Co. of Findlay.

Gorman said Cooper's bid would have saved the state $45,000. The committee asked Noble to attend another meeting next Tuesday and answer these questions:

1. Were specifications or lack of specifications the reason for the rejection of the Cooper tires?
2. If so, what specification or the lack of what specification?
3. Was there any previous experience or information at your disposal indicating that the Cooper tire might be inferior?

4. If none of the foregoing questions is answered in the affirmative, what motivated the change of specifications?

5. Would the Cooper tire meet the new specifications?

6. If the answer is, "I don't know," did the department attempt to discover whether or not Cooper tire would meet these specifications before rejecting the bid?

Northend Sewer Project Is Launched

Big Job Drawn To Cover Wide Section Of City

Gas Rate Increase Gets 2nd Reading; Delay In Vote Seen

City council last night passed three pieces of key legislation to start turning the wheels on the long-studied and much-discussed North End sewer project, a huge job designed to modernize sewer facilities over a wide section of the community. Cost of the improvement has been estimated at $259,000.

Action taken consisted of routine preliminary moves, being in effect approval of the plans drawn for the work. The plans are the result of studies made for the city by the firm of Burgess and Niple, engineering consultants.

Council also heard second reading on an ordinance to increase Circleville natural gas rates, and a brief discussion on arrangements made to defend the city's zoning law, now under challenge in court.

It was the first reading for the three measures pertaining to the North End sewer project. Council passed one ordinance to set up a sewer district with specified boundaries, and another to authorize the hiring of a Cleveland firm of municipal bond attorneys to assist in the financing work.

THE OTHER related measure was a resolution under which the city announced its intention to condemn and appropriate land for the project if that becomes necessary.

It was explained that the steps taken so far, although important, are still preliminary in the picture. Until bonds are sold as part of the financing plan, it was pointed out, the city has not committed itself to go through with the job.

Council also passed another new ordinance that will add three dollars to court costs in any intoxication case requiring use of the "breathalyzer", newly obtained equipment intended chiefly for use in testing suspected "drunk" drivers. Councilman George Crites explained that operators of the mechanism have to undergo special training and that other investments are also involved.

After Safety Director Miller Fissell had read inventories of the police and fire departments to make his annual report, council turned to the proposal to boost natural gas rates in Circleville. An ordinance for that purpose was submitted several weeks ago by the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

The measure was given second reading, but Councilman Richard Penn and others served notice that third reading will probably be delayed, possibly until April. Penn said he would not be prepared to vote on such an important measure at council's next meeting, and other councilmen voiced agreement.

The public, he emphasized, should have ample opportunity to file objections, if any. The new proposed scale would boost monthly gas bills for the average Circleville customers by a little more than 10 percent.

SHORTLY before adjournment, Crites said he feels there should be some way to place a limit on the amount of money the city can spend to defend the zoning law in court. Taxpayers have filed action against the law and have asked for an injunction against its application. Answering action by the city is scheduled soon.

At council's previous meeting, while Crites was on a vacation trip, council voted to hire Attorney Tom Renick as assistant city solicitor to help defend the law. Council at that time voted to "employ" Attorney William Ammer for the same purpose, but stipulated that Ammer would serve free of charge.

In suggesting "some sort of lid" on city spending in defense of the ordinance, Crites commented: "I don't think the (zoning) ordinance is right, and the city solicitor doesn't think it's right either."

(City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins has asked council to hire special counsel to defend the law, stating he did not wish to be involved beyond "assisting" in the case.)

Councilman Dudley Carpenter, agreeing with the views expressed by Crites, urged that some arrangement be made to have periodic reports made to council on how much money has been spent on the court proceedings. However, Robbins cautioned:

"That would be very impractical and also unfair to Mr. Renick, especially if the reports were to be made every two weeks."

"WELL, HOW about every 30 days?" asked Councilman Charles Kirkpatrick.

"Well, it shouldn't be oftener," replied the solicitor.

Carpenter and others participating in the discussion underlined that they were making the suggestion merely as "a good business policy", and not out of any disrespect for the newly hired assistant city solicitor.

"I have high regard for both Mr. Renick and Mr. Ammer," Carpenter said, "but I think we ought to know how much we're spending."

Robbins pointed out that, if a limit on spending were set in advance, that limit might be reached just at the climax of court proceedings. And in a flurry of chuckles over that thought council ended the discussion and adjourned.

It takes about nine pounds of wool to make an average man's suit.

Episcopal School Adds Negro Tutor

CONCORD, N. H. —The rector of St. Paul's Episcopal boys school says "everyone is quite pleased" at the appointment of the school's first Negro instructor.

"We are not concerned with his color and everyone is quite pleased that he is joining the staff," said the Rev. Matthew V. Warren. The new master, the Rev. John T. Walker, 31, presently rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Detroit, will take over his new duties in the history department of the century-old private school next September.

Death Car Driver Facing Sentence

DEFIANCE —George Schelb, 38, of Bryan, whose car struck and killed two Sherwood teenagers on U. S. 127 near Sherwood Jan. 12, faces 1-20 years in Ohio Penitentiary.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Dan Batt of the Defiance County common pleas court after Schelb pleaded guilty to second degree manslaughter in the deaths of Barbara Linn Mohley, 16, and John Chancey Flory, 18.

County Shares In Distribution Of Relief Funds

Pickaway County will receive $61,304.68 in poor relief funds from the state, State Auditor James A. Rhodes has announced. This sum will represent the county's share of $17,833,727.85 the state has collected from the 1.65 percent by public utilities.

The current distribution to the state's 88 counties is in addition to the $15,500.00 appropriated by the legislature for poor relief during the current fiscal year.

Last year the counties received $15,891,641.25 in poor relief money from the tax paid by utilities. In 1935 they received $14,933,028.79.

The 1.65 percent excise tax paid by public utilities in 1936 amounted to $34,193,135.80, with $17,833,727.85 going to the counties for poor relief, and $16,359,407.95 going into the general revenue fund of the state.

POWER COMPANIES paid more than twice as much as any other utility group, with natural gas companies next, telephone companies, third, and railroads fourth.

The public utilities excise tax for poor relief was first enacted in 1931 as a depression measure, but has continued ever since.

Tiffin Hospital Job Abolished

TIFFIN —The position of staff psychiatrist at Tiffin State Hospital has been abolished, Dr. M.T. Smith, hospital superintendent, announced Tuesday.

Dr. H. Kenneth Moir, fired by Smith Jan. 27, has appealed to the Ohio Civil Service Commission, which set a hearing for March 18.

"Since the job is now abolished there is no point in an appeal," Dr. Smith said.

Dr. Smith accused Dr. Moir of not being able to get along with hospital personnel when he removed Moir from the $1,291-a-month staff psychiatrist post.

After 136 Years, Church Gets Pastor

CINCINNATI — The Presbytery of Cincinnati has filled a pulpit that has been vacant for 136 years.

Northend Sewer Project Is Launched

Big Job Drawn To Cover Wide Section Of City

Gas Rate Increase Gets 2nd Reading; Delay In Vote Seen

City council last night passed three pieces of key legislation to start turning the wheels on the long-studied and much-discussed North End sewer project, a huge job designed to modernize sewer facilities over a wide section of the community. Cost of the improvement has been estimated at $250,000.

Action taken consisted of routine preliminary moves, being in effect approval of the plans drawn for the work. The plans are the result of studies made for the city by the firm of Burgess and Niple, engineering consultants.

Council also heard second reading on an ordinance to increase Circleville natural gas rates, and a brief discussion on arrangements made to defend the city's zoning law, now under challenge in court.

It was the first reading for the three measures pertaining to the North End sewer project. Council passed one ordinance to set up a sewer district with specified boundaries, and another to authorize the hiring of a Cleveland firm of municipal bond attorneys to assist in the financing work.

THE OTHER related measure was a resolution under which the city announced its intention to condemn and appropriate land for the project if that becomes necessary.

It was explained that the steps taken so far, although important, are still preliminary in the picture. Until bonds are sold as part of the financing plan, it was pointed out, the city has not committed itself to go through with the job.

Council also passed another new ordinance that will add three dollars to court costs in any intoxication case requiring use of the "breathalyzer," newly obtained equipment intended chiefly for use in testing suspected "drunk" drivers. Councilman George Crites explained that operators of the mechanism have to undergo special training and that other investments are also involved.

After Safety Director Miller Fissell had read inventories of the police and fire departments to make his annual report, council turned to the proposal to boost natural gas rates in Circleville. An ordinance for that purpose was submitted several weeks ago by the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

The measure was given second reading, but Councilman Richard Penn and others served notice that third reading will probably be delayed, possibly until April. Penn said he would not be prepared to vote on such an important measure at council's next meeting, and other councilmen voiced agreement.

The public, they emphasized, should have ample opportunity to file objections, if any. The new proposed scale would boost monthly gas bills for the average Circleville customers by a little more than 10 percent.

SHORTLY before adjournment, Crites said he feels there should be some way to place a limit on the amount of money the city can spend to defend the zoning law in court. Taxpayers have filed action against the law and have asked for an injunction against its application. Answering action by the city is scheduled soon.

At council's previous meeting, while Crites was on a vacation trip, council voted to hire Attorney Tom Renick as assistant city solicitor to help defend the law. Council at that time voted to "employ" Attorney William Ammer for the same purpose, but stipulated that Ammer would serve free of charge.

In suggesting "some sort of lid" on city spending in defense of the ordinance, Crites commented:

"I don't think the (zoning) ordinance is right, and the city solicitor doesn't think it's right either."

(City Solicitor Kenneth Robbins has asked council to hire special counsel to defend the law, stating he did not wish to be involved beyond "assisting" in the case.)

Councilman Dudley Carpenter, agreeing with the views expressed by Crites, urged that some arrangement be made to have periodic reports made to council on how much money has been spent on the court proceedings. However, Robbins cautioned:

"That would be very impractical and also unfair to Mr. Renick, especially if the reports were to be made every two weeks."

"WELL, HOW about every 30 days?" asked Councilman Charles Kirkpatrick.

"Well, it shouldn't be oftener," replied the solicitor.

Carpenter and others participating in the discussion underlined that they were making the suggestion merely as "a good business policy," and not out of any disrespect for the newly hired assistant city solicitor.

"I have high regard for both Mr. Renick and Mr. Ammer," Carpenter said, "but I think we ought to know how much we're spending."

Robbins pointed out that, if a limit on spending were set in advance, that limit might be reached just at the climax of court proceedings. And in a flurry of chuckles over that thought council ended the discussion and adjourned.

It takes about nine pounds of wool to make an average man's suit.

Episcopal School Adds Negro Tutor

CONCORD, N. H. (P)—The rector of St. Paul's Episcopal boys school says "everyone is quite pleased" at the appointment of the school's first Negro instructor.

"We are not concerned with his color and everyone is quite pleased that he is joining the staff," said the Rev. Matthew V. Warren. The new master, the Rev. John T. Walker, 31, presently rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Detroit, will take over his new duties in the history department of the century-old private school next September.

Death Car Driver Facing Sentence

DEFIANCE (P)—George Scheib, 38, of Bryan, whose car struck and killed two Sherwood teenagers on U. S. 127 near Sherwood Jan. 12, faces 1-20 years in Ohio Penitentiary.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Dan Batt of the Defiance County common pleas court after Scheib pleaded guilty to second degree manslaughter in the deaths of Barbara Linn Mohley, 16, and John Chancey Flory, 18.

County Shares In Distribution Of Relief Funds

Pickaway County will receive $61,304.68 in poor relief funds from the state, State Auditor James A. Rhodes has announced. This sum will represent the county's share of $17,833,727.85 the state has collected from the 1.65 percent by public utilities.

The current distribution to the state's 88 counties is in addition to the $15,500.00 appropriated by the legislature for poor relief during the current fiscal year.

Last year the counties received $13,891,641.25 in poor relief money from the tax paid by utilities. In 1955 they received $14,933,028.79.

The 1.65 percent excise tax paid by public utilities in 1956 amounted to $34,193,135.80, with $17,833,727.85 going to the counties for poor relief, and $16,359,407.95 going into the general revenue fund of the state.

POWER COMPANIES paid more than twice as much as any other utility group, with natural gas companies next, telephone companies, third, and railroads fourth.

The public utilities excise tax for poor relief was first enacted in 1931 as a depression measure, but has continued ever since.
